~~[CCB Note: The following is a press statement issued by the Ministry of Finance on 20 December 1977 for the purposes of clarification of sec. 12(6) and (7) of the Income Tax Act.~~

~~"1. The Income Tax Amendment Act, 1977 which came into effect on 7 July 1977 introduced certain provisions which have the effect of frustrating tax avoidance schemes in syphoning off Singapore profits, particularly between associated companies in Singapore and outside Singapore. However, some of these provisions have been given more than one possible interpretation, thus giving rise to doubt on the scope and amount of payments to non-residents subject to tax. For the purposes of clarification and ease of administration, where the following services are performed outside Singapore by persons outside Singapore for or on behalf of residents or permanent establishments in Singapore, or even between associated companies, and such transactions are at arm's length and not with intent of syphoning off Singapore income, the Commissioner of Inland Revenue has given the following rulings:—~~

[3 080] RESIDENCE AND SOURCE

If a DTA fails to allocate residency of a dual resident to one of the DTA partner countries, relief is not available under the DTA and double taxation may arise: eg see the USA agreement, which does not allocate residency for dual resident companies.

[ATP 6/1090]

SOURCE

[3 080] Introduction

The second pillar of Australian tax jurisdiction is "source of income". "Source" is used in 2 senses: the geographical source of certain income or the classification of certain income, such as dividends, interest, royalties or income from personal exertion. In this chapter "source" is used in the former sense, to identify that income which has such a clear geographic connection with Australia that it can be described as having a source in Australia.

The relevant source rules are a combination of both statutory rules (see [3 090]) and certain common law principles that have been established over a number of years (see [3 100]). As said in Nathan v FCT (1918) 25 CLR 183, source is a "practical hard matter of fact" and it is therefore difficult to generalise about the source of any given income without reference to the specific facts of any given case. Nevertheless, the cases have attempted to state some broad general principles.

[ATP 25/10]

[3 090] Statutory source rules

There are a few specific statutory source rules in ITAA 1936 (the definition of "Australian source" in s 995-1 of ITAA 1997 merely adopts the ITAA 1936 rules). Some of the classes of income for which specific rules are prescribed are considered below.

Outgoing royalties

Section 6C deems certain royalties (being broadly those that are paid by an Australian business to a non-resident) to have an Australian source. It should be noted that there is a substantial class of royalty payments not covered by this provision (eg inbound royalties) and, in order to ascertain the source of those royalties, the general principles described below need to be applied. The relevant definition of "royalty" in s 6(1) is extremely broad.

Certain types of natural resource income

The effect of s 6CA is that, for certain purposes, "natural resource income" (defined in s 6CA(1)) is deemed to have an Australian source. The section broadly follows the pattern of s 6C although, significantly, the geographic limitations in s 6C are not in s 6CA. Thus, the section may need to be read down as regards payments by one non-resident to another.

Interest payments secured by a mortgage over Australian property

Section 25(2) (which still applies despite s 25(1) being replaced by s 6-5 of ITAA 1997) gives interest a deemed source in Australia if the interest is on money secured by the mortgage of any property in Australia. There is an exception where interest is paid to a non-resident on company debentures and the payment of interest and issue of debentures takes place outside Australia.

Certain dividends

Section 44(1)(b) provides that the assessable income of a non-resident shareholder includes dividends paid by any company to the extent to which they are paid out of profits

[Interpretation of section. Subsection 3(1) of Act No 146 of 1979 provides:
 "44) The amendments made by subsection (1) of Act No 146 of 1979 s 3] to s 61A are enacted for the purpose of doubt to interpreting section 61A of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 for the purposes of the application of that section in cases where shares referred to in that section as bonus shares were allotted after 3 October 1978 and before the commencement of this section (28 November 1979) or are allotted after the commencement of this section (28 November 1979), but, in interpreting section 61A of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 for the purposes of the application of that section in cases where shares referred to in that section as bonus shares were allotted on or before 3 October 1978, no regard shall be had to the preceding provisions of this section."]

INCOME □ Generally

Principle of territoriality

The extent to which the Income Tax Act should have extra-territorial effect was discussed in Alcan New Zealand Ltd v C of IR (1993) 15 NZTC 10,125 at p 10,134, where the High Court said:

"It is a general principle of statutory construction that the legislature intends Acts of Parliament not to have effect outside New Zealand. Adapting the general principle of the statement by Lord Scarman in Clark (HMT) v Oceanic Contractors Inc [1982] BTC 417; [1983] 2 AC 120 at p 145, unless the contrary is expressly enacted, or so plainly implied that the courts must give effect to it, New Zealand legislation is applicable only to New Zealand subjects or to foreigners who by coming to New Zealand, whether for a short or a long time, have made themselves subject to New Zealand jurisdiction. The principle is a rule of construction only. Presence not residence is the test."

This principle, as stated by the High Court, was affirmed in C of IR v Alcan New Zealand Ltd (1994) 16 NZTC 11,175 where the Court of Appeal dismissed the Commissioner's appeal from the judgment of the High Court.

For discussion of the residency tests, see ¶1-120-¶1-140.

15-071 Income deemed to be derived in New Zealand [see OE 4, OE 5]

The source rules specify the classes of income which are to be treated as having been derived in New Zealand. These are as follows:

- Income derived from any business wholly or partly carried on in New Zealand is deemed to be derived from New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(a).
- Income derived from any business carried on outside New Zealand is subject to New Zealand income tax to the extent that the income is derived from—
 - The ownership of land in New Zealand (rents and so on).
 - A mortgage of land in New Zealand (interest and so on).
 - Shares in a New Zealand company or debentures issued by a New Zealand company, a public authority or a local authority.
 - New Zealand central government securities or debentures.
 - An ex gratia payment which is a pension within the meaning of s CC 1(2).
 - Money lent in New Zealand (being interest or a redemption payment).
 - Money lent outside New Zealand to a New Zealand resident (subject to the exceptions outlined below).
 - Certain royalties. See s OE 4(1)(r).
- All remuneration earned in New Zealand in an employment relationship is to be treated as having a source in New Zealand, ie, all salaries, wages, allowances and emoluments of any kind earned in New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(c). This rule applies even though the employer or principal paying the salary may be a non-resident for New Zealand tax purposes. In the case of personal services income it may be earned in the place where—
 - the contract of employment is made;
 - payment for the services is made; or
 - the services are actually performed.
- Payments of compensation or allowances made under the Accident Compensation Act 1992 and the Accident Rehabilitation and Compensation Insurance Act 1992 as

- referred to in s CC 1(a), (b) are to be treated as having a source in New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(d).
- Income derived from the ownership of land in New Zealand is deemed to be derived from New Zealand (this covers not only the straightforward case of receipts of rent but also other receipts such as fines and premiums deemed to be receipts of an income nature by s CE 1(1)(e)). See s OE 4(1)(c).
 - Income derived under any mortgage of land in New Zealand is regarded as having a source in New Zealand (mortgage interest would be the most common receipt falling within this category). See s OE 4(1)(f).
 - Income derived from shares in or membership of a company resident in New Zealand or from debentures issued by a company resident in New Zealand or by a local or public authority. See s OE 4(1)(g).
 - Income from debentures or other securities issued by the New Zealand Government is deemed to be derived from New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(h).
 - Any pension or annuity paid out of any superannuation fund established in New Zealand is to be treated as derived in New Zealand (the same treatment applies to any pension or annuity paid by the New Zealand Government). See s OE 4(1)(i).
 - An ex gratia payment that is a pension within the meaning of s CC 1(2) of the Act. See s OE 4(1)(j).
 - Income from funds invested in the Common Fund of the Public Trust Office or the Maori Trust Office has a New Zealand source. See s OE 4(1)(k).
 - Income from the disposition of property situated in New Zealand (this rule applies to tangible and intangible forms of property — in the case of profits from the sale of real estate, the profits would have to be of an income nature by virtue of the provisions of s CD 1). See s OE 4(1)(l).
 - Income from money lent (on or after 29 July 1983) in New Zealand has a New Zealand source (that income may be in the form of interest, which may include a premium, or a redemption payment). See ss CZ 2, OE 4(1)(m).
 - Income (being interest or a redemption payment) from money lent outside of New Zealand (on or after 1 July 1983) has a New Zealand source only when it is lent to:
 - a New Zealand resident unless the loan is used in respect of business activities carried on by him or her outside New Zealand through a fixed establishment overseas; or
 - a non-resident for use in respect of business activities carried on in New Zealand through a fixed establishment in New Zealand: see ss CZ 2, OE 4(1)(n).
 - Income derived from insurance premiums on insurance contracts:
 - offered or entered into in New Zealand, whether or not executed in New Zealand, and whether or not the insurer has an agent or a fixed establishment in New Zealand; or
 - where the insured person is resident in New Zealand; or
 - where the insured person is a non-resident and the contract is entered into for the purposes of that person's business in New Zealand which is carried on through a fixed establishment in New Zealand: see s OE 4(1)(o).
 - Income derived by a beneficiary under a trust is New Zealand sourced income to the extent that the income of the trust fund is derived from New Zealand (this means that the other source rules must be applied to determine whether any item of - trust income is to be regarded as having a source in New Zealand). See s OE 4(1)(p).

- Income derived from contracts made or wholly or partly performed in New Zealand are to be treated as derived from New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(q).
 - Royalties of the following sorts are deemed to be derived from New Zealand:
 - royalties paid by a New Zealand resident which are not paid in respect of a business carried on by him or her overseas through an overseas fixed establishment; or
 - royalties paid by a non-resident which are deductible when calculating assessable income for New Zealand tax purposes: see s OE 4(1)(r).
 - Payments of any kind to the extent to which they are paid as consideration for the use of (or the right to use) any personal property in New Zealand are to be treated as income having a source in New Zealand. This rule does not, however, apply to royalties having a New Zealand source under the paragraph above — since this rule applies only to rent for personal property it does not cover rents for land and buildings. See s OE 4(1)(s).
 - Income derived from carrying merchandise, goods, livestock, mail or passengers with the point of departure being in New Zealand is to be treated as having a source in New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(t).
 - Life insurer base income derived by a New Zealand branch of a non-resident life insurer is deemed under s CN 3 to have a source in New Zealand. The same proposition applies in respect of the policyholder income of a non-resident life insurer.

As a catch-all provision, income derived directly or indirectly from any other source in New Zealand is also deemed to have a source in New Zealand. See s OE 4(1)(u).

In the case of a commission agent in business in New Zealand entering into a contract authorising the sale of any goods or merchandise outside of New Zealand, on behalf of a resident taxpayer, all income derived from such a contract is deemed to be derived from a business carried on in New Zealand. When income is derived partly in New Zealand and partly outside New Zealand, an apportionment may be made. See s OE 5. (This applies only to income from business and income derived from contracts contained in s OE 4.)

The wording of s OE 5 is amended to reflect taxpayer self-assessment from the 2002/03 income year. However, the principle remains the same.

A similar tax treatment applies to income derived by non-resident shipping operators operating within New Zealand coastal waters. Income generated from cargo embarked on any ship at a port outside New Zealand for carriage to any New Zealand port is deemed to be derived from New Zealand under s OE 4(1)(a), s OE 4(1)(q) or s OE 4(1)(u). The income deemed to be derived from New Zealand under s OE 4(1)(a) and (q) may be apportioned under s FB 2. See Tax Information Bulletin Vol 6, No 14, June 1995, p 14.

¶5-076 Personal services — source of income [s OE 4(1)(e)]

The source of income is not a legal concept but something which a practical person would regard as a real source of income: the ascertaining of the actual source is a matter of fact. See Nathan v FC of T (1918) 25 CLR 183. In C of IR v Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken [1955] NZLR 868 the Court of Appeal accepted that that
