8. Mr Bernard CHAN said that subsequent to the terrorist attacks in the United States on 11 September 2001, there had been significant increases in insurance premiums and/or reduction in insurance coverage for some business sectors/industries. Recently, there were calls for government intervention in this regard. Members were generally concerned that the increases in insurance premiums might put undue financial pressure on some business sectors/industries when they were already operating under very difficult economic conditions. To obtain a better understanding of the situation, Members agreed to request the Administration to provide the Panel with relevant data and analyses. The Panel would decide at a later stage whether the issue should be discussed at a future Panel meeting if members so wished.
9. There being no other business, the meeting ended at 2:35 pm.
