Review of Advisory and Statutory Bodies

Interim Report No. 14 – Review of the Classification System of Advisory and Statutory Bodies in the Public Sector

Purpose

This paper reports the outcome of a review of the existing classification system of public sector advisory and statutory bodies in Hong Kong.

Background

2. Public sector advisory and statutory bodies can be classified according to their functions as follows:

- (a) advisory boards and committees which are bodies set up (mainly administratively) to provide expert advice in particular areas or subjects, or to advise on the development of government policies or the delivery of public services;
- (b) non-departmental public bodies which are non-commercial organizations set up to deliver services to the public at arm's length from the Government;
- (c) regulatory boards and bodies which comprise registration boards, licensing boards, supervisory boards and regulatory bodies;
- (d) appeal boards which usually perform a semi-judicial function by adjudicating on appeals to resolve disputes in certain areas between private citizens and the Government/a public body set up by the Government;

- (e) advisory and management boards of trusts, funds and funding schemes which advise on the investment of trust funds or the allocation of trust funds for specific use; manage trust properties and invest trust funds; or advise on the management of funding schemes;
- (f) public corporations which are commercial entities set up by law to provide goods or services; and
- (g) miscellaneous boards and committees.

3. Under the present classification system, there are 509 public sector boards and committees, of which 229 are statutory and 280 are non-statutory. Statutory bodies are those that are set up by enabling legislation. Non-statutory bodies are those that are set up administratively, and most of them are advisory bodies.

4. A breakdown of the 509 advisory and statutory boards by type is at Annex 1.

The Review

5. The purpose of the review is to streamline and rationalize the existing classification of public sector advisory and statutory bodies. Of the existing 509 public sector boards/committees, 124 are district-based advisory boards/committees, including 18 District Councils (DCs), 70 Area Committees (ACs), 18 District Fight Crime Committees (DFCCs) and 18 District Fire Safety Committees (DFSCs).

District Councils

6. District Boards were first set up under the District Boards Ordinance in 1982 and later renamed District Councils in 2000 to reflect their enhanced functions in district administration. Since their establishment, they have been playing an essential advisory role on district matters and territory-wide issues. Apart from reflecting public opinion and promoting community building, DCs also play an instrumental role in monitoring the delivery of public services and promoting Government initiatives at the district level. The terms of reference of a DC are at Annex 2.

Area Committees, District Fight Crime Committees and District Fire Safety Committees

7. The 106 district-based committees (namely, ACs, DFCCs and DFSCs) complement the work of DCs in implementing the District Administration Scheme by promoting public participation in district affairs and fostering among Hong Kong people a sense of belonging and mutual care. These committees play an important role in identifying and addressing issues of local concern and organizing various publicity campaigns and community building activities at the district level to promote greater public awareness of various themes such as crime prevention and fire safety. DC members have been participating actively in the work of these committees, and have forged a strong link between these committees and DCs. The views expressed by members of these district-based committees on local issues are channeled to DCs for follow-up action when the need arises. The terms of reference of these district-based committees are at Annex 3.

Recommendation

8. DCs are the principal district-based advisory bodies and constitute the key component of the District Administration Scheme. On the other hand, the work of ACs, DFCCs and DFSCs is mainly activity-oriented and often focuses on specific local issues. These district-based committees are quite different in nature from the other organizations which are currently classified as public sector advisory bodies. We recommend removing ACs, DFCCs and DFSCs from the list of public sector advisory and statutory bodies so as to streamline and rationalize the existing classification system for these bodies. DCs would continue to be classified as public sector advisory bodies.

9. Under this new classification system, the number of public sector advisory and statutory bodies would be reduced to 403. A full list of public sector advisory and statutory bodies under the new classification is at Annex 4.
