Notes: (1) Calendar year 2005 figures. The corresponding figures for the Mainland comprise figures of both the central and local governments.

(2) Government spending = government expenditure + advances and equity investments from the Capital Investment Fund + repayment of government bonds and notes charges to the Capital Works Reserve Fund.

(3) Public expenditure = government expenditure + expenditure by trading funds and the Housing Authority.

(4) In Hong Kong, consolidated surplus/deficit is defined as government spending subtracted from government revenue. In other economies, it is defined as government expenditure subtracted from government revenue.

(5) The Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Government usually publishes another ratio, which is defined as public expenditure divided by GDP. However, in other economies, the ratio of government expenditure to GDP is more commonly adopted.
