Our College raises great concern and objection to these two proposals. As stated in our previous submission, the exemption of nutrition claims for products of small sales volume violates the fundamental objectives of the labeling scheme. Such relaxation will greatly compromise the overall health gain from this scheme.

labelling of trans fat in our legal system also makes law enforcement extremely difficult.

The two proposed amendments will greatly undermine the objective of protecting public health. The revised version of the proposed amendments was already a much watered-down version of the original as proposed in the consultation document. With further exemption, we really doubt how the whole scheme could safeguard the health of Hong Kong people. We appeal to the Legislative Council members not to accept these proposed amendments.
