

Legal Practitioners (Amendment) Bill 2009

The Law Society makes the following submissions on the Bill:

Section 39F

The Law Society has been invited to consider whether there should be a cap on the maximum number of terms of re-appointment for members of the Assessment Board.

We note that there is a general rule that a person should not sit on an advisory body for more than six years and consider this general cap should be applied to members of the Assessment Board; it is good policy that regular opportunities should be available to appoint “new faces” to statutory bodies.

The Law Society of Hong Kong

30 September 2009

128927