

The 2009-10 Policy Address
Policy Agenda

Policy Agenda

Introduction

Just before the last Policy Address was delivered, the credit crisis faced by financial institutions on Wall Street of the US broke out, unleashing the global financial tsunami. In view of the massive shock waves buffeting our economy, we need to clearly evaluate the situation and prepare ourselves to respond to the crisis. In response, the Chief Executive established the Task Force on Economic Challenges (TFEC) to implement immediate measures and formulate long term plans to help Hong Kong turn the crisis into opportunities.

The Government expected that the financial tsunami would have wide-ranging implications and the situation was far from optimistic. The Chief Executive put forward the overall strategy of “stabilising the financial system, supporting enterprises and preserving employment”, and introduced a series of measures to support our enterprises, create jobs and revitalise the economy. In the Budget announced in February 2009, the Government further adopted a counter-cyclical fiscal strategy to stimulate the economy. In May 2009, the Government announced a new round of relief measures to help Hong Kong people tide over the difficulties and prepare for economic recovery.

The latest economic figures indicate that both the local and external economies have started to stabilise gradually. Yet, the signs of a clear recovery have not fully emerged. We must remain cautious and do our best to boost the economy. This will be the primary focus of Government's policies in the coming year.

The pillar industries that have underpinned Hong Kong's success over the years, including financial services, trade and business, logistics and shipping, and tourism and professional services, etc., still enjoy strong advantages. But we need to innovate and enhance our competitiveness in response to competition from other cities in the region. We also need to broaden the foundation of our economy by promoting diversity and add new impetus for sustainable growth.

To this end, the TFEC has recommended the development of six industries where Hong Kong enjoys clear advantages, namely educational services, medical services, testing and certification, innovation and technology, cultural and creative industries, and environmental industry. We firmly believe that Hong Kong must evolve into a knowledge-based economy to grasp new opportunities. The six industries are all knowledge-based and to promote their development, the Government needs to adopt a new mindset and new attitudes. At the same time, we will step up co-operation with Guangdong on all fronts, and continue our endeavours in infrastructure facilities, industries co-operation, environmental protection and education, etc.

Hong Kong's experience shows that people's livelihood would only be safeguarded by economic growth. Faced with the current economic challenges, Hong Kong people are more concerned about their future and livelihood. We believe that once the economy starts to rebound, there will be more employment opportunities and wage levels will gradually pick up. Construction of major projects under planning in 2007, including the Hong Kong section of Guangzhou-Shenzhen-Hong Kong Express Rail Link and the Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge, are planned to commence in 2009. They will provide economic benefits to all sectors of the community.

We also attach great importance to taking forward Hong Kong's constitutional development. We will consult the public, before the end of this year, on the electoral arrangements for 2012, and will strive to forge consensus within the community. Our aim is to enhance the democratic elements of the 2012 electoral methods, so as to pave the way for implementing universal suffrage in 2017 and 2020.

For Hong Kong to ride out the current economic storm, emerge from recession and chart new directions for our economy, we must rely on the hard work and dedication of every Hong Kong citizen. We must equip ourselves since opportunity only favours the prepared.

Chapter 1

Developing the Infrastructure for Economic Growth

Preamble

Infrastructure development is a driving force for Hong Kong's development. In the 1970s and 1990s, large-scale infrastructure projects provided the momentum for Hong Kong to develop into a cosmopolitan city.

The ten major infrastructure projects announced by the Chief Executive are being implemented. The construction of infrastructure for early development of Kai Tak commenced in July 2009 while site formation works for the new cruise terminal will commence before the end of 2009. The construction of both the Hong Kong section of Guangzhou-Shenzhen-Hong Kong Express Rail Link and the Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge are planned to commence in 2009. The various major infrastructure developments will create ample employment opportunities and boost our Gross Domestic Product.

In terms of economic development, we will consolidate Hong Kong's status as a centre of financial services, trade and shipping while maintaining our leading position in tourism, logistics and aviation and maritime services. To further develop Hong Kong into a knowledge-based economy, we will also promote the development of six industries where Hong Kong enjoys clear advantages, namely, educational services, medical services, testing and certification, innovation and technology, cultural and creative industries, and environmental industry. In the face of global competition, the Government will enhance Hong Kong's competitiveness, improve the business environment and step up co-operation with Guangdong on all fronts.

Chapter 3

Investing for a Caring Society

Preamble

The financial tsunami struck hard at all sectors of our community. In response, the Chief Executive put forward the strategy of “stabilising the financial system, supporting enterprises and preserving employment” to reduce unemployment and introduced a series of short-term measures to alleviate the difficulties faced by our people. In the long term, the Government will continue to enhance the competitiveness of the grassroots through education and retraining. We will also safeguard the well-being of workers at the grassroots level and seek to forestall the phenomenon of excessively low wage through a statutory minimum wage. As regards the disadvantaged, they need support from the Government. In particular, as Hong Kong is moving towards an ageing society, we have to provide better support to the elderly in need. To facilitate persons with disabilities to integrate into society, we need to strengthen services and support for them and their carers. We are also determined to tackle the youth drug abuse problem, which has become increasingly serious. To fulfil our responsibility to our future generations, we will join hands with all sectors of society in combating the drug problem.

Chapter 4

Optimising Our Demographic Structure And Attracting Talent

Preamble

Hong Kong is facing the challenge of an ageing population. The proportion of elderly population in Hong Kong will rise rapidly over the next two decades, at a rate much faster than most other advanced economies. This will have a far-reaching impact on the economy, healthcare, welfare, retirement protection, education and public finance. We need to prepare for this challenge.

We need to continue enhancing the quality and competitiveness of our population in order to meet the challenges of a knowledge-based economy. To this end, we will continue to devote substantial resources to education and vigorously develop retraining services.

To meet the rising expectation of the public on healthcare services, the Government is progressively increasing the resources devoted to healthcare to respond to the changing demographic structure, increasing healthcare needs and rising health expenditure so as to enhance healthcare services and implement service reforms initiatives before the healthcare financing arrangements are finalised.

In 2009, to fight against the human swine influenza (Influenza A (H1N1)), which is posing a global threat, we have stepped up our efforts in the prevention, containment and mitigation of the disease. We are also prepared for the imminent winter peak of influenza. As we deal with a public health crisis, we also have to continue to develop measures to ensure the long-term sustainability of the healthcare system. For this purpose, the Government aims to put forward more concrete proposals on various healthcare reform issues, including healthcare financing, in 2010 and launch the second stage public consultation to deepen the discussion and galvanise consensus.

New Initiatives

We will:

- Allocate additional resources and establish a dedicated team to implement the initial recommendations of the Working Group on Primary Care in the next few years, including –

Chapter 5

Developing Democracy And Enhancing Governance

Preamble

Hong Kong has taken a critical step forward in its constitutional development. The Decision adopted by the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress makes it clear that the election of the HKSAR Chief Executive may be implemented by universal suffrage in 2017. The Decision also makes it clear that after the Chief Executive is selected by universal suffrage, the election of the Legislative Council may also be implemented by universal suffrage. That is, after the election of the Chief Executive is implemented by universal suffrage in 2017, the Legislative Council may also be elected by universal suffrage in 2020. The Decision has brought Hong Kong's constitutional development to a new stage. We should seize on this valuable opportunity and pursue constitutional development in a rational, pragmatic and inclusive manner. We should look for common ground while respecting differences of opinion in order to forge a consensus on the constitutional arrangements for the year 2012. This will enable Hong Kong to move towards the ultimate goal of universal suffrage. The Government will consult the public, before the end of this year, on the electoral arrangements for 2012, and put forth our proposed package within 2010, with a view to determining the two electoral methods within the tenure of the current-term Government.

Apart from pursuing the development of democracy, we will enhance governance and improve the quality of public services at the same time. We will continue to uphold the principle of people-based governance and strengthen our communications with the public to bring our policies more in line with public opinion.
