I. Standardised Care Need Assessment Mechanism for the Elderly Services

[LC Paper Nos. CB(2)2315/09-10(01) to (03) and CB(2)2349/09-10(01)]

The Subcommittee deliberated (index of proceedings attached at Annex).

2. The Subcommittee received views from five deputations on the Standardised Care Need Assessment Mechanism for Elderly Services ("SCNAMES"). Major views of the deputations are summarised as follows -

- (a) even though if the elders were assessed to have long-term care needs and were eligible for subsidised residential care services and/or community care services, the existing provision of such services was far from adequate to meet the care needs. The Administration should allocate more resources for enhancing the services and relieving the waitlisting situation as well as formulate a long-term strategy for the provision of community care services for the elderly to meet their specific needs;
- (b) some deputations were worried that SCNAMES was used to suppress the demand on the provision of elderly services. Specifically, an elder, who was considered suitable for both residential and community care services after undergoing SCNAMES, would be asked to try community care services in the first place;
- (c) the Administration should review the service matching by SCNAMES expeditiously with a view to coping with the changing needs of the frail elders; and
- (d) the Administration should enhance the transparency of the assessment statistics and results by, say, uploading the relevant information on the Social Welfare Department's website such that the assessed elders would be aware of the waitlisting situation.

3. Members shared the view of the deputations that the provision of subsidised residential care services and community care services for the elderly was inadequate to meet the ever increasing demand arising from the ageing population. Members generally considered that the crux of the matter was whether the Administration would commit itself to allocating more resources for the elderly services with a view to relieving the waitlisting situation.

Action

4. In the light of the views of deputations and members, Principal Assistant Secretary for Labour and Welfare (Welfare)3 ("PAS(W)3") said that the Government had provided a range of subsidised centre-based and home-based community care services to help elders with long-term care needs to age in place. This apart, the Government had also introduced a number of initiatives to support elders to continue to live in the community, viz. the District-based Scheme on Carer Training, the Integrated Discharge Support Trial Programme for Elderly Patients, the Home Environment Improvement Scheme for the Elderly and the Pilot Scheme on Home Care Services for Frail Elders.

5. PAS(W)3 further said that while ageing in place was the Government's policy, residential care places would continue to be provided to those elders who were in need of such services. In view of the relatively long waiting time for subsidised nursing home ("NH") places and the limited supply of such places in the private market, the Government had adopted a multi-pronged approach and introduced the following new initiatives to increase the provision of NH places and long-term care ("LTC") places offering a continuum of care ("COC") -

- (a) increase the proportion of NH places in existing contract RCHEs;
- (b) purchase vacant NH places from self-financing homes; and
- (c) make full use of the space in existing subvented RCHEs to provide more LTC places with COC under the conversion programme.

PAS(W)3 assured members that the Administration was fully aware of the rising demand for elderly services, in particular residential care services for the elderly, and would continue to put in significant resources to improve the waitlisting situation.

6. Assistant Director of Social Welfare (Elderly) ("AD(E)") added that the Government would continue to step up its efforts in identifying new resources and suitable sites for setting up new RCHEs. Apart from earmarking sites in the public housing estates such as the Un Chau Estate redevelopment project and the government complex of Tung Chung Municipal Services Building, SWD also earmarked sites in private development projects in Tai Kok Tsui, Sai Ying Pun and Sha Tin, etc. for the setting up of new RCHEs.

7. Regarding concerns about SCNAMES, AD(E) said that the service matching aimed at providing elders with the most suitable type of services according to the assessment results, and that elders would not be denied of the service on account of the tight provision of such service. Under SCNAMES, assessors would conduct comprehensive assessment in respect of the applicants' impairment level based on their abilities covering the elders' abilities in activities of daily living, physical functioning, memory, communication, behaviour and emotion, as well as the applicants' health conditions, living environment and how the elders coped with their daily living which included the capabilities of their family members in taking care of them. After assessment, the recommended services would basically be provided in order of priority according to the completion date of the assessment, but consideration would be given to individual assessed elders having regard to the special circumstances of each case. PAS(W)3 said that the need for a review of SCNAMES would be covered in the on-going consultancy study led by the Elderly Commission ("EC"), in the context of possible enhancement of community care services with a view to further encouraging elders to age in place. It was expected that the consultancy study would be completed in the first half of 2011. EC would report the study findings to the Panel on Welfare Services.

8. To facilitate members' better understanding of specific services being provided to those assessed to have long-term care needs and were eligible for subsidised community care services, the Chairman requested the Administration to provide the relevant Funding and Service Agreements with the service providers for day care and home care services, if available. Given that the care needs of elderly applicants for subsidised long-term care services were assessed with MDS-HC, and that they were matched with appropriate services based on the assessment results, the Chairman requested the Administration to provide members with details of the MDS-HC items. The Chairman added that the Administration should make use of the raw data collated from SCNAMES to facilitate building up an information base for better policy and service planning.
