Background brief on the operation and regulatory framework of the tourism sector

Purpose

This paper provides background information and summarizes Members' views on the operation and the regulatory framework of the tourism sector.

Establishment of the Travel Industry Council of Hong Kong and its operation

Background

2. The Travel Industry Council of Hong Kong (TIC) was established in 1978 as a trade association for travel agents, and incorporated under the Companies Ordinance (Cap. 32) in 1988. It carries out its work in accordance with its Memorandum and Articles of Association (MAA).

3. The Government enacted the Travel Agents Ordinance (Cap. 218) (TAO) in 1985 to make it mandatory for all outbound travel agents to be licensed. The Travel Agents Registry (TAR)¹ was set up in the same year to administer the TAO in particular the licensing regime and regulation of travel agents. Following amendments to TAO in 1988 to bring in trade self-regulation to form the two-tier regulatory regime, any person carrying on business as an outbound travel agent is required to be a member of TIC² before applying for a travel agent's licence from TAR. With the Travel Agents (Amendment) Ordinance 2002 taking effect in November 2002, the statutory requirement of TIC membership for obtaining travel agents' licence was extended to cover inbound travel agents.

¹ Under the provisions of TAO, TAR issues licence to inbound and outbound travel agents and carries out relevant surveillance work, including monitoring the operation and financial position of the licensed travel agents.

² Prior to joining TIC as an ordinary or affiliate member, a travel agent should join one of the eight Association Members each of which has its unique characteristics catering for specific needs of different markets. Ordinary member agents may conduct any travel and tourism business while the business of affiliate members is restricted to booking of hotel rooms and air tickets, retail sale of package tours and other travel-related dealings.

4. The mission of TIC is to maintain a high standard of professionalism within the industry and to protect the interests of both the trade and travellers. TIC is responsible for trade self-regulation, including the promulgation of codes³ and directives, as well as putting in place a disciplinary mechanism to handle violation of the codes and directives by member agents. To improve travel agents' service, TIC introduced accreditation systems for tour escorts in 1999 and tourist guides in 2004 respectively. For the latter, a Continuing Professional Development programme was introduced in 2007 to encourage on-going service improvements.

5. The Tourism Commission (TC) was established in May 1999 to map out the Government's tourism development strategy, providing a focal point for liaison with the tourism industry and enhancing co-ordination in developing tourism. Apart from attending meetings of the TIC Board and its various committees as observer, TC also maintains close communication with TIC on various issues affecting the trade.

Organizational structure of TIC

6. The composition of TIC Board is specified in its MAA, which now provides that the Board comprises 29 members, including a Chairman from the trade, eight member-elected directors, eight Association Member representatives and 12 Government-appointed independent non-trade directors⁴ coming from different sectors such as the legal and accountancy fields and those with consumer protection experience. TIC issues the General Code of Conduct for the Board to ensure that its directors, being "public servants" subject to the regulation of the Prevention of Bribery Ordinance (Cap. 201), discharge their duties in an impartial and honest manner. Important decisions, reports of the Board's monthly meetings and disciplinary information⁵ are uploaded onto TIC's website for member agents' reference.

7. Under the Board, there are 17 committees and a Working Group on TIC

Elections. There is also an Appeal Board to hear appeals on TIC's decisions. The convenors of committees responsible for disciplinary matters related to travel agents, tourist guides and tour escorts are non-trade independent directors while the majority of these committee members are from non-trade background.

8. The Appeal Board, which is independent from the TIC Board, is to hear appeals lodged by aggrieved agents or industry members against TIC's disciplinary decisions. Every Appeal Board consists of three independent non-trade members and two trade members⁶ who must have no interest in or connection to the case under appeal.

9. The policies laid down by the TIC Board are carried out by the TIC Executive Office which has 10 departments with an establishment of about 56 staff as at February 2011 under the Executive Director.

Income and financial control

10. When the Travel Industry Council Reserve Fund was replaced by the statutory Travel Industry Compensation Fund (TICF)⁷ in 1993, opportunity was taken to introduce the Council levy under the TAO to ensure that the TIC has stable and recurrent income of finance its trade regulatory functions. Council levy⁸, income from training courses and membership fee⁹ represent 63%, 16% and 8% of TIC's total income in 2009-2010 respectively. TIC also derives income from other sources, such as inbound tour registration fees, shop registration fees, tour escorts and tourist passes registration fees, etc.

11. TIC's annual account is audited by a professional auditor and submitted for approval by the TIC Board followed by an annual general meeting where all members of the TIC and the independent non-trade directors are invited to attend. A copy of the TIC annual report, which encloses the audited accounts, is issued to every member. TIC is also required under TAO to submit to the Secretary for Commerce and Economic Development (SCED) each year the estimates of its income and expenditure in respect of the next financial year. As TIC does not receive Government subvention, it is not subject to the Audit Commission's scrutiny.

⁶ All these members must be present to meet the quorum of the Appeal Board.

⁷ TICF is held, managed and applied by the TICF Management Board set up under Section 32D of TAO. TICF derives its income from the levy contributed by travel agents in accordance with section 32H of TAO. The Travel Agents Ordinance (Specification of Fund Levy) Amendment Notice 2009 was made in June 2009 to reduce the TICF levy rate from 0.15% to 0% with effect from 3 July 2009.

⁸ At a rate of 0.15% of every outbound fare received since 1993.

⁹ $1,000 for Ordinary Members (limited companies) and $600 for Affiliate Members (sole proprietorships and partnerships) since 1993.

Review of the operation of the Travel Industry Council of Hong Kong in 2009-2010

Members' discussions leading to the review

12. All along, the role and functions of TIC had been a subject of public contentions. Members raised a number of questions at Council meetings on issues related to TIC, including regulation of travel industry, complaint handling mechanism, illegal provision of tourist guide services, training courses for the travel trade, measures to assist the tourism industry, assistance to tour groups visiting Hong Kong, collection of Council levy and monitor the operation of TIC.

13. At the Council meeting on 30 May 2007, a motion debate on "Fostering the development of the tourism industry" took place. During the debate, there was a suggestion to turn TIC into a statutory body so as to provide a legal basis for its regulatory work. Some Members also suggested the Administration to review the composition of the TIC Board.

14. At the meetings held by the former Panel on Economic Services¹⁰ on 27 November 2006 and 23 April 2007 which were attended by the Administration as well as representatives from TIC, Hong Kong Tourism Board, Consumer Council (CC), and organizations of the retail and travel trades, some Panel members expressed concern that the problems related to "zero/negative-fare"¹¹ tours and shopping scams had reflected the ineffectiveness of the self-regulatory regime of the travel industry. The Panel urged the Administration to undertake a comprehensive review and consider setting up an independent statutory body to regulate the industry.

15. The Panel on Economic Development (the EDEV Panel) invited the travel industry and CC to give views on the operation of TIC at the meeting on 16 July 2009. Some travel agents expressed grave concerns about the statutory requirement of TIC membership for obtaining a licence, the collection of Council levy, the heavy penalty imposed on them for violation of TIC codes of conduct, the lack of employee representatives in the TIC Board and the Disciplinary Committees. Some other deputations commended the work of TIC for serving as a middle person balancing the interests of the trade and tourists and for its capability in catering for the changing needs of the travel industry. Some Panel members queried the legal basis for TIC, an incorporated body, to play an industry self-regulatory role in monitoring the travel agents¹², collect Council levy¹³ from them and regulate the conduct of tourist guides and escorts. At the meeting, the Panel passed a motion urging the Government to conduct a thorough review of the structure, functions, fees and relevant arrangements of TIC, including whether it should become a statutory organization and be subject to value-for-money audits, and to provide legal advice on whether the present licensing arrangements for travel agencies were in breach of the Basic Law.

The review

16. The Government subsequently conducted a review of the operation of TIC in 2009-2010 and examined various aspects of TIC including its role in the current regulatory regime of the travel agents in Hong Kong. During the process, references were made to the views of TIC, the Advisory Committee on Travel Agents, the TIC's Association Members and members of the trade.

17. The Government concluded that while there was room for improvement, TIC had established an effective role in the regulatory regime which should be recognized and maintained. In particular, TIC had built good rapport and extensive network with local and overseas travel-related industries. It was able to follow changes in the industry, detect early signs of malpractices in the trade, formulate effective responses and regulatory measures, act promptly in handling tourism-related emergencies, and make timely efforts enabling travel agents to respond to crises in a coordinated manner. To make clearer TIC's position and functions under the regulatory regime, the Commerce and Economic Development Bureau would consult the Department of Justice to amend TAO to specify TIC's role more clearly.

Improvement measures

18. Since July 2009, TIC has made further measures to improve its operation taking into account the views of the EDEV Panel, including appointment of an independent director with trade union background to reflect frontline employees' interests, establishment of a Governance Committee to review and make recommendations on the operation of TIC, election of an independent director to serve as the convenor of its Staff and Finance Committee, publication of meeting agenda and sanitized minutes on TIC's website to increase transparency as well as enhanced monitoring by TC. TIC has engaged an independent auditor to conduct a value-for-money audit which commenced in December 2010 and will be completed by phases. TIC has also formulated clearer guidelines on TIC elections and issued the "Rules for Election of Elected Directors" on 16 July 2010.

¹² According to the Panel's legal adviser, the control and regulation of travel agents is provided in TAO which stipulates that a licensed travel agent must be a TIC member. The MAA of TIC, and the Codes of Conduct promulgated by the TIC Board also appear to provide the basis for TIC to play an industry self-regulatory role in monitoring travel agents. For details, please refer to LC Paper No. LS53/09-10.

Panel members' view on the review outcome

19. The Administration briefed members on the outcome of the review at the meeting of the EDEV Panel on 24 May 2010. Panel members noted that the Administration intended to maintain the current regulatory regime for the travel agents, as TIC in its present form (i.e. a trade body with regulatory functions) was best placed to foster trade development and regulate the ever changing trade practices. Some members considered it important for TIC to enhance public recognition of its role as an agent which could foster trade development while protecting consumer interests. However, some other members queried how TIC could impartially strike this balance since it was basically a trade association and a company registered under the Companies Ordinance. These members were of the view that specifying TIC's role more clearly in TAO would only legalize and reinforce the existing unreasonable arrangement under which the Government was not statutorily empowered to monitor TIC's operation. A member further enquired about the possibility of turning TIC into a statutory body, with its composition, functions, powers and framework of checks and balances governed by a specific ordinance.

20. The Administration advised that the industry self-regulatory regime for the travel industry was a long-established and widely accepted framework, and any attempt to revoke it would require very careful consideration. Moreover, industry self-regulation would not hinder parallel efforts of enhancing consumer protection. In this respect, the Administration would continue discussions with TIC possible ways to further enhance the complaint mechanism to ensure that consumer complaints would be dealt with in a more impartial and transparent manner. The Administration would continue to work closely with TIC in improving the regulatory regime in the light of the changing circumstances of the trade.

21. The travel industry and CC were invited to give views on the operation of TIC at the Panel meeting on 22 November 2010. Some travel agents expressed concern about the statutory requirement of TIC membership for obtaining a travel agent licence, and TIC's right in collecting Council levy and penalizing infringing members. Some Panel members considered that under the industry self-regulatory regime, TIC had not been able to monitor the travel industry effectively as evidenced by the recurrent problems arising from "zero/negative" reception fee for Mainland inbound tour groups despite TIC had issued a large number of directives regulating them. With the influx of Mainland inbound tour groups and the increasing number of outbreak of incidents, some deputations called for a further review of the role of TIC as it had been tasked with additional responsibilities yet without the mandate which had made it difficult for TIC to fulfill its expected roles among member agents and the public. Some members urged the Administration to consider setting up a statutory body to monitor the travel industry. TIC was also requested to report to the Panel the outcome of the value-for-money audit in due course.

22. The Administration responded that it would review the structure of TIC, in particular the composition of the TIC Board and power delegated to TIC, and amend TAO to set out clearly the role of TIC as a public association in the regulatory framework. As TAO also involved the function and power of TAR, the Administration would consider the amendment of TAO together with the review.

Incidents leading to a further review

23. On 22 May 2010, a member of a tour group from Hunan to Hong Kong died of heart attack after quarrelling with an illegal tourist guide who refused to let the tour group leave a registered jewellery shop. In response to the incident, TIC has implemented a series of immediate measures since June 2010 and the details are given in Appendix I. In addition, a "Task Force on the Review of the Operation and Regulation of Mainland Inbound Group Tours" (the Task Force) was established under TIC in June 2010 to formulate medium to long-term measures to improve the regulation of the receiving of Mainland inbound tours, in particular measures targeting at "zero/negative-fare" tours and regulation of tourist guides.

24. When the Administration briefed the EDEV Panel on the follow-up measures adopted after the Hunan tourist incident at the Panel meeting on 28 June 2010, some members considered that the incident reflected again the problems of industry self-regulation regime and "zero/negative-fare" tours, since as many as 24 complaints had been lodged against the travel agent in question which had already violated TIC's codes and directives eight times. Some members considered that instead of adopting punitive measures and imposing heavier sanctions following each widely reported incident, TIC should put in place preventive measures to deter non-compliance. Some members also urged the Government to duly review whether it should take up a more proactive role in regulating the travel agents.

25. In July 2010, a clip of the female guide berating a group of mainland visitors as cheapskates went viral on the internet and television screens across the Mainland. TIC had subsequently decided to impose penalties on the two travel agents concerned, and suspend the Tourist Guide Pass of the female guide in question for six months, after which any violation of the relevant rules would lead to revocation of her Pass.

26. In his 2010-2011 Policy Address, the Chief Executive remarked that the few incidents concerning unscrupulous practices relating to Mainland tour groups had tarnished the reputation of tourism industry. The Government was determined to step up regulation and promote the healthy and sustainable development of the tourism industry. SCED has been tasked to review the operation and regulatory framework of the entire tourism sector, including the role, powers, responsibilities and operation of TIC, as well as its working relationship with TAR.

27. When the Administration briefed the Panel on the proposed ten measures recommended by TIC's Task Force at the meeting on 22 November 2010, some members questioned whether the new measures would be adequate to deal with the core problem arising from "zero/negative-fare" tours. Some members expressed concern about travel agents pocketing a portion of the tips received by tourist guides/tour escorts and requiring tourist guides/tour escorts to pre-pay travel agents in advance before receiving the tours. There was also concern about the endorsement and implementation of the proposed measures by TIC. In response, the Administration provided on 14 January 2011 the ten directives issued by TIC (CB(1)1078/10-11(01)) in relation to the ten measures to be implemented with effect from 1 February 2011. Details of the measures are in Appendix II.

Latest development

28. On 5 February 2011, a dispute erupted between a couple from Anhui in a Mainland inbound tour group and their tour guide over the itinerary and shopping arrangements, and they ended up being charged for fighting in a public place. The court subsequently ordered them to be bound over for a year for $1,000. The dispute was widely reported by the Mainland media, amongst which the state broadcaster, China Central Television, commented that the case brought "shame on Hong Kong's image as a shoppers' paradise". The local media later reported that the couple was promised $120,000 in compensation by the travel agent in question.

29. The Administration has indicated that it will brief the EDEV Panel on the initial findings of the review on the operation and regulatory framework of the entire tourism sector as announced in the 2010-2011 Policy Address at the Panel meeting on 28 February 2011. In response to some Panel members' request, it is agreed that the item will cover discussion on the ten measures recently implemented by TIC.
