Public Consultation on the Proposed Legislation to Regulate the Sale of First-hand Residential Properties

Purpose

This paper invites Members' views on the proposed legislation to regulate the sale of first-hand residential properties in the context of the public consultation exercise which commenced on 29 November 2011.

Background

2. To enhance the transparency and fairness of the sales arrangements of first-hand residential properties, the Chief Executive announced in his 2010-11 Policy Address that a Steering Committee would be set up to discuss specific issues on regulating the sale of first-hand flats by legislation. The Steering Committee on the Regulation of the Sale of First-hand Residential Properties by Legislation (the Steering Committee) was formally established in October 2010. After extensive discussions on a range of issues from the scope of the legislative framework, the key features to be regulated under the proposed legislation, to the enforcement mechanism and penalties, the Steering Committee submitted practicable recommendations in a report to the Secretary for Transport and Housing in October 2011 (the report has been uploaded in the website of the Transport and Housing Bureau (THB) at <http://www.thb.gov.hk/eng/policy/housing/policy/firstsaleresidential/report2011-e.pdf>).

3. In the aforesaid report, the Steering Committee recommended that legislation be introduced to regulate the sale of all types of first-hand residential properties, including projects developed under old lease conditions, Consent Scheme projects, and projects outside the Consent Scheme. It came up with detailed recommendations on the requirements on sales brochures, price lists, show flats, disclosure of transaction information, advertisement, sales arrangements, prohibition on misrepresentation and dissemination of false and misleading information, penalties, enforcement agency, and exemption arrangements.

Public Consultation Exercise on the Legislative Proposals

4. Having considered and primarily based on the recommendations made by the Steering Committee, THB has prepared draft provisions in the form of proposed legislation to regulate the sale of first-hand residential properties. The proposed legislation seeks to enhance the transparency and fairness of the sales arrangements of first-hand residential properties. It also aims to strike a balance between enhancing consumer protection on the one hand, and allowing developers to continue to take business decisions in the light of market situations on the other. As this is a new and complicated piece of legislation and there is widespread interest in the community on the subject matter, the Government has decided to publish the draft provisions of the proposed legislation for public consultation for two months before formally introducing a bill into the Legislative Council. The consultation document (including the proposed legislation) is at Enclosure.

The Proposed Legislation

5. The intention of the proposed legislation is to create a clear regime to regulate the arrangements for the sale of all first-hand residential properties including both uncompleted and completed developments. It sets out detailed requirements in relation to the sales brochures, price lists, show flats (if provided) and disclosure of transaction information. The proposed legislation also sets out the sales arrangements and conveyancing procedures for the better protection of prospective purchasers. There are also provisions relating to advertisements and prohibition against misrepresentation and the dissemination of false or misleading information to address public concerns in these areas. Exemptions are proposed under some specific circumstances where certain requirements are not necessary or applicable. To ensure compliance with the requirements in the proposed legislation, penalties at different levels are proposed for the commission of offences under different sections of the proposed legislation. Specific defences are provided for persons charged under these sections. An enforcement authority with certain statutory powers will be established to administer the proposed legislation and to supervise compliance with the provisions therein.

Public Consultation Exercise

6. The two-month public consultation will end on 28 January 2012. During the consultation period, we will meet with the major stakeholders, including the Law Society of Hong Kong, Hong Kong Institute of Surveyors, Hong Kong Institute of Architects, Consumer Council, Real Estate Developers Association of Hong Kong and the various estate agency associations. We will also arrange two public forums to listen to the views of the public. Members of the public are also invited to send in their views through a designated E-forum, or by email, fax or mail.

7. We will compile and publish a report on the result of the consultation. We will also revise the legislative proposals as appropriate in the light of the views received. Our plan is to introduce a bill into the Legislative Council in the first quarter of 2012.

Advice Sought

8. Members are invited to comment on the legislative proposals at Annex.

CONSULTATION PAPER ON THE PROPOSED LEGISLATION TO REGULATE THE SALE OF FIRST-HAND RESIDENTIAL PROPERTIES

BACKGROUND

The purchase of a flat is a major undertaking for most people in Hong Kong. They have to take decisions that will see them use a substantial part of their life-time savings and sign up to a major financial commitment that normally spans 10 years or more. Since the purchase of a residential property is likely to be the most significant investment an individual will make, there is general consensus in the community that certain arrangements undertaken by developers relating to the sale of residential properties should be regulated by law in order to enhance consumer protection.

2. For many years, the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Government has been closely monitoring the arrangements undertaken by developers relating to the sale of residential properties, particularly those involving first-hand uncompleted residential properties. Some administrative practices and measures have been devised and implemented by different bodies, comprising the Lands Department's Consent Scheme (the Consent Scheme), the guidelines issued by the Real Estate Developers Association of Hong Kong (REDA) for compliance by its member developers, the regulatory work of the Estate Agents Authority (EAA) on the estate agency trade, and consumer education undertaken by the Consumer Council. In recent years, the Transport and Housing Bureau (THB) has implemented, through the Consent Scheme and REDA's guidelines, a number of measures to enhance the transparency and clarity of property and transaction information provided for uncompleted first-hand private residential properties. Most notable was the implementation of the "nine new measures" on sales brochures, price lists, show flats and the disclosure of transaction information introduced with effect from 1 June 2010.

3. While the existing measures and practices have been practical and useful in providing transparent, accurate and appropriate property information to prospective purchasers, they are limited in their respective scopes of application such that they do not cover non-Consent Scheme projects and are not applicable to non-REDA members nor to first-hand completed residential developments. There is a general public view that the existing measures and practices are insufficient and that consumer protection in respect of the sale of all types of first-hand residential properties should be enhanced. A new regulatory regime established under legislation covering the sale of all types of first-hand residential properties is considered to be necessary to achieve the degree of consumer protection required, ensure that the proposed measures are complied with and provide a stronger deterrent effect against malpractices.

STEERING COMMITTEE'S REPORT

4. To enhance the transparency and fairness of the sales arrangements and transactions of first-hand residential properties, the Chief Executive announced in his 2010-11 Policy Address that a Steering Committee would be set up to discuss specific issues on regulating the sale of first-hand flats by legislation. The Steering Committee on the Regulation of the Sale of First-hand Residential Properties by Legislation (the Steering Committee) was formally established in October 2010. After extensive discussions on a range of issues from the scope of the legislative framework, the key features to be regulated under the proposed legislation, to the enforcement mechanism and penalties, the Steering Committee submitted practicable recommendations in a report to the Secretary for Transport and Housing in October 2011 (the report has been uploaded in the website of the THB at <http://www.thb.gov.hk/eng/policy/housing/policy/firstsaleresidential/report2011-e.pdf>).

5. The Steering Committee is of the view that the provision of clear and accurate property information is most important to help prospective purchasers to make an informed decision. In the course of coming up with the recommendations set out in its report, the Steering Committee has made reference to the existing arrangements under the Consent Scheme and the REDA's guidelines. For background reference, the Steering Committee has also taken note of the sales practices in selected overseas jurisdictions. At the same time, the Steering Committee has given full regard to the particular characteristics of the local property market. While the Steering Committee considers that it is important to step up the regulation of the arrangements for sale of first-hand residential properties in Hong Kong by way of legislation to ensure that consumers' interest can be better protected, it recognizes that the regulatory measures should not be overly rigid and should provide developers with a degree of flexibility to allow them to respond to changing market conditions.

6. Having considered the recommendations made by the Steering Committee, THB has prepared draft provisions in the form of proposed legislation to regulate the sale of first-hand residential properties (hereafter referred to as the “proposed legislation”) : a copy is at Annex A. The proposed legislation seeks to enhance the transparency and fairness of the sales arrangements of first-hand residential properties. It also aims to strike a balance between enhancing consumer protection on the one hand, and allowing developers to continue to take business decisions in the light of market situations on the other. As this is a new and complicated piece of legislation and there is widespread interest in the community on the subject matter, the Government has decided to publish the draft provisions of the proposed legislation for public consultation for 2 months before formally introducing a bill into the Legislative Council.

MAJOR AREAS COVERED IN THE PROPOSED LEGISLATION

7. The intention of the proposed legislation is to create a clear regime to regulate the arrangements for the sale of all first-hand residential properties including both uncompleted and completed developments. It sets out detailed requirements in relation to the sales brochures, price lists, show flats (if provided) and disclosure of transaction information. The proposed legislation also sets out the sales arrangements and conveyancing procedures for the better protection of prospective purchasers. There are also provisions relating to advertisements and prohibition against misrepresentation and the dissemination of false or misleading information to address public concerns in these areas. Exemptions are proposed under some specific circumstances where certain requirements are not necessary or applicable. To ensure compliance with the requirements in the proposed legislation, penalties at different levels are proposed for the commission of offences under different sections of the proposed legislation. Specific defences are provided for persons charged under these sections. An enforcement authority with certain statutory powers will be established to administer the proposed legislation and to supervise compliance with the provisions therein.

SALIENT PROVISIONS OF THE PROPOSED LEGISLATION

(a) Scope (Part 1 Clause 4)

8. At present, there is no legislation that specifically regulates the arrangements for the sale of first-hand residential properties in Hong Kong. The vendor (i.e. real estate developers) and the purchaser (i.e. individual purchasers) are not on an equal footing. Since the vendor is in a much stronger position than the purchaser, there have been strong calls from the community for enhanced consumer protection by way of regulation over the sale of first-hand residential properties by legislation.

9. Generally speaking, the vendor of first-hand residential properties is a developer. First-hand residential properties under those Consent Scheme projects which have not yet been granted a Certificate of Compliance (CC) or Consent to Assign¹ (CA) by the Director of Lands, and those non-Consent Scheme projects² which have not yet been issued with an Occupation Permit³ (OP) by the Buildings Department (BD), are regarded as uncompleted first-hand residential properties. Once the CC/CA or OP, as appropriate, has been issued in respect of unsold properties, they are regarded as completed first-hand residential properties. At present, only where the Government lease so provides, the Government may regulate the sale of uncompleted first-hand residential properties through the terms of conditions of the Consent Scheme. REDA issues guidelines covering the sale of first-hand uncompleted residential properties, compliance with which is expected of all its member developers. Vendors who are not REDA members are not bound by the REDA guidelines. The sale of uncompleted first-hand residential properties in non-Consent Scheme projects, and completed first-hand residential properties, are currently not subject to the measures mentioned.

² Non-Consent Scheme projects refer to property developments where there are no subsisting lease conditions stipulating that prior consent of the Director of Lands is required for the sale of uncompleted units.

³ An OP will be issued by the BD if it is satisfied with the submission of a certificate on completion of building works resulting in a new building and application for permit to occupy such building by the authorized person. A CC/CA and an OP will be issued in respect of a Consent Scheme project, whereas only an OP but not the CC/CA will be issued in respect of a non-Consent Scheme project.

10. To increase transparency and ensure fairness of sales, we consider the proposed legislation should cover the sale of all first-hand uncompleted and completed residential properties, irrespective of whether they are projects developed under the old lease conditions, Consent Scheme projects⁴ or projects outside the Consent Scheme. The legislation will thus be applicable to residential properties in respect of which no agreement for sale and purchase has ever been entered into.

11. We recognize the argument that for first-hand residential properties which vendors lease out for a reasonably long period rather than sell upon completion, such flats are akin to second-hand flats and as such their sales should not come under the same regulatory regime as first-hand flats. We therefore propose to grant exemption to residential properties where 95% or more of the units of the development or a phase of the development have been leased out for a reasonably long period of time. There is a need to specify, for this specific purpose a duration for leasing out in the legislation and 36 months is considered appropriate to avoid vendors simply withholding the developments for sale in order to circumvent legislative control.

12. Having regard to the growing trend for the building of houses in developments, especially in the New Territories, and in view of the fact that the potential purchasers of these houses are no longer confined to a specific sector in the community, no exemption is proposed to be granted under the legislation for such residential developments. That said, it is noted that there are instances where the vendors are private individuals selling just one first-hand single house, as in the case of New Territories Exempted Houses (NTEHs)⁵. It may be too onerous to require such vendors to meet the requirements of the legislation such as the provision of the sales brochure and the price list, etc. Consideration should be given to granting exemption to vendors selling just one first-hand single house.

13. In addition to the above, we consider that developments that are constructed by the Housing Authority (HA), namely, the new and residual Home Ownership Scheme (HOS) flats, should be exempted, having regard to the fact that HOS flats are subsidized flats and that the HA has to follow set parameters to dispose of these flats (in terms of determining the target group, setting of sale price and determining flat selection priorities among eligible applicants etc.) which are completely different from normal market practice.⁶

(b) Saleable Area (Part 1 Clause 3)

14. To most, if not all, prospective purchasers, “flat size” and “flat price” are two crucial factors to be taken into account when making a flat purchase decision. In recent years, members of the public have been demanding better information on this front. It is therefore very important that such information is provided to prospective purchasers in a clear, accurate and consistent manner. The information so provided should also facilitate potential purchasers’ ability to compare flat prices of different developments calculated on the same area basis.

15. To enhance the transparency and clarity of information presented in the sales descriptions for uncompleted first-hand residential properties, a standardized definition of “saleable area” was adopted in October 2008⁷ for use under the Consent Scheme and became a requirement under the REDA’s guidelines. The standardized definition of “saleable area” sets out the method to calculate the saleable area, which only includes the area of the unit and any balcony, utility platform or verandah. However, it is common market practice for the vendor to quote unit prices of flats in “gross floor area” (GFA) which includes the “apportioned share of common area” in the calculation. Different vendors may include different items⁸ in their calculation of GFA, and thus the methodologies adopted to determine unit prices of flats calculated based on GFA are not transparent and not consistent among vendors.

⁶ The proposed legislation aims to regulate the sale of first-hand residential properties. Projects which involve leasing of first-hand residential properties for a long period of time, including the existing Senior Citizen Residences Scheme projects and the proposed Tanner Hill and Tin Shui Wai elderly housing projects under the Hong Kong Housing Society which involve ‘lease-for-life’ arrangement, will not be subject to the proposed legislation (see also paragraph 11).

⁷ The Administration consulted the Hong Kong Institute of Surveyors, the Hong Kong Institute of Architects, the Law Society of Hong Kong, the Consumer Council and the EAA in the course of working out a standardized definition of saleable area. The standardized definition has been in use since 10 October 2008 for all Consent Scheme projects. It is also set out in REDA’s guidelines for its members’ compliance. In addition, Rating and Valuation Department (RVD) has adopted this definition in measuring the saleable area of a residential unit for developments completed as from 10 October 2008.

16. In the light of the fact that there is currently no commonly adopted definition of GFA, the Steering Committee has proposed to adopt the saleable area which has a standardized definition as the only basis to quote unit prices of flats in the sales brochure, price lists and advertisements. We have reflected this recommendation in the proposed legislation, which will enable prospective buyers to better compare flat prices at different new developments calculated on the same basis. We also note that in the course of its deliberations, the Steering Committee has pointed to the need for consumer education during the transitional period, in order for the public to familiarise themselves with the use of saleable area only for price quotation. It is our intention to step up public education in this respect upon enactment of the proposed legislation.

(c) Sales Brochure (Part 2 Division 2; Schedule 1)

17. The sales brochure is a very important source of property information which provides details on the residential properties to be sold. Apart from information on the physical layouts of the developments, it also contains other important information that the purchaser would not have access to even if he pays a visit to the development site in person, such as the salient points of the Deed of Mutual Covenant (DMC) and the land grant conditions. It is therefore crucial for prospective purchasers that information contained in the sales brochures is clear, accurate and comprehensive and that such information should be made public in a timely manner before the sale commences.

18. Having regard to existing practice, the proposed legislation requires the vendor to make public the bilingual sales brochure at least seven calendar days before the commencement of sale. A copy of the sales brochure should also be made available at the sales office and to the authorities as specified in Schedule 2 and uploaded onto the vendor's website. To help prospective purchasers to distinguish sales brochures from promotional booklets, any publication other than the sales brochure cannot be called a "sales brochure".

19. The sales brochure should set out the following key property information in the first part of the sales brochure in a specified order and meet specific minimum font size requirements -

1. notes to purchasers of first-hand residential properties
2. information on the development, the vendor and the others involved in the development
3. information on the design of the development and property management
4. a location plan of the development
5. the latest aerial photo of the development
6. relevant statutory plans⁹
7. a master layout plan of the development
8. floor plans
9. area schedule of the units
10. floor plans of car parking spaces
11. a summary of the Preliminary Agreement for Sale and Purchase (PASP)
12. a summary of the Deed of Mutual Covenant
13. a summary of the land grant conditions
14. information on Government, Institutional or Community Facilities, Public Open Space and Public Facilities

20. As regards communal facilities in respect of which the flat owners would not have exclusive use, the vendor should provide area information for such facilities in the sales brochure in a specified format for easy reference by potential purchasers. Taking into account the fact that there are numerous types of communal facilities, the vendor is only required to provide area information in respect of those communal facilities that are of interest to ordinary flat purchasers and where the relevant area information could be verified, i.e. “residents’ clubhouse”, “communal sky garden” and “covered and landscaped play area”. The vendor is free to provide area information on other communal facilities if it so wishes. However, as there is no commonly adopted definition of GFA, the vendor should not quote information about the GFA per flat or unit price based on GFA in the sales brochure (or the price list, see paragraph 24 below). The sales brochure must also not contain any promotional material or artist impression picture or graphic.

⁹ A developer should provide the Outline Zoning Plan or Development Permission Area Plan, whether in draft or approved form, prepared under the Town Planning Ordinance (Cap. 131), or Development Scheme Plans prepared by the Urban Renewal Authority and considered by the Town Planning Board under section 25 of the Urban Renewal Authority Ordinance (Cap.563).

(d) Price List (Part 2 Division 3)

21. Currently, under the Consent Scheme and REDA's guidelines, vendors selling first-hand uncompleted flats are required to make public each and every price list at least three calendar days in advance of commencement of sale when selling any number of units in a batch. A minimum number of flats to be included is specified for the first price list but not subsequent price lists. It is common practice for the vendor to release residential properties for sale in small batches. This "sell by batches" approach enables the vendor to test the market and make adjustments to the sales strategy in the light of the market response. However, such practice is not sufficiently transparent and potential purchasers are unable to obtain comprehensive information before making purchase decisions.

22. Taking into account existing requirements and the market practice, the proposed legislation requires the vendor to make public the price list at least three calendar days before the sale commences.

23. To enable purchasers to get a fuller picture of the prices of a reasonable number of units in a development at the outset, the proposed legislation sets out clearly the minimum number of units to be included in the first and subsequent price lists. For a development or a phase of development with 30 units or less, all units must be included in the first price list, i.e. only one price list will be allowed. For a development or a phase of development with more than 30 units but less than 100 units, each price list must contain at least 30 units. For a development or a phase of development with 100 units or more, subject to a minimum number of 50 units, the first price list must include at least 20% of the total number of units in a development or a phase of development, and at least 10% of the total number of units in each subsequent price list. This proposal aims to strike a balance between enhancing market transparency and allowing a certain degree of flexibility for the vendor to respond to changing market conditions.

24. The proposed legislation specifies the essential information to be included in the price list. The floor area and unit price per square foot and per square metre of a residential property in the price list should only be quoted on the basis of the saleable area but not GFA. Information on special payment terms including all kinds of gifts, financial advantages and benefits in connection with the sale of the unit affecting the actual price of the unit should be clearly set out in the price list. To facilitate easy comparison between different developments by prospective purchasers, the vendor has to provide the price lists in a standard format to be promulgated by the enforcement authority.

(e) Show Flats for Uncompleted Development or Phase (Part 2 Division 4)

25. The provision of show flats has been welcome by prospective flat purchasers as show flats provide an easy means for them to visualize the actual flats upon completion. It is common for purchasers of uncompleted units to make purchase decisions after visiting the show flats. The requirements for show flats should therefore be clearly spelt out in the proposed legislation to ensure that the show flats give an accurate depiction of the actual units to be handed over to the purchasers.

26. The proposed legislation specifies that, if show flats are provided, an unmodified show flat should be provided for any type/size of units first before a modified show flat of that same type/size of units can be shown and vendors must make available the sales brochure at the same time when a show flat is opened for public viewing.

27. The size/dimensions of all show flat(s) must be identical to the size/dimensions of the units concerned as specified/described in the sales brochures. All bay windows, air-conditioning plant rooms, balconies, utility platforms and verandahs located inside the units, if any, must be featured in the show flats. The floor-to-ceiling height of a show flat should not exceed that specified in the sales brochure. If the height of a show flat is lower than the height of the actual unit, a notice of a conspicuous size stating the height difference must be displayed in a prominent location in the show flat. The fittings, finishes and appliances should be the same as those stated in the sales brochure, otherwise the vendor should provide comparable alternatives and a notice should be displayed stating the difference.

28. For unmodified show flats, all doors, walls, including enclosing/boundary walls and internal partition walls should be provided unless for fire-safety reasons. There should be no additional fittings, finishes and appliances other than those stated in the sales brochure.

29. As for modified show flats, only those walls/doors the removal of which does not require the prior approval of the Buildings Department, may be removed. If there are any fittings, finishes and appliances in addition to those stated in the sales brochure, a notice should be displayed stating which items are to be provided to purchasers and that all others are additional.

30. Visitors should be allowed to take measurements in show flats. Photo-taking and video-making should be allowed in unmodified show flats and the vendor should not impose any pre-conditions on the visitors, such as provision of personal particulars.

(f) Viewing of Property in Completed Development or Phase (Part 2 Division 5)

31. With effect from June 2010, vendors have been required under REDA's guidelines to show visitors on-site unit(s) when selling completed first-hand residential properties in a development.

32. Under the legislation, it is proposed that the vendor should allow the purchaser to view the particular first-hand completed residential property before the vendor can sell that residential property. If it is not reasonably practicable to arrange viewing of that particular unit, the vendor should arrange a comparable unit for viewing. The on-site units for viewing should comply with the relevant requirements for show flats in uncompleted first-hand residential properties. If it is not reasonably practicable to arrange a comparable unit for viewing in place of the particular unit, the vendor is required to obtain a written consent from the purchaser for the requirement for the provision of a comparable unit for viewing be waived before the vendor can sell the unit.

(g) Sales Arrangements (Part 2 Division 6)

33. At present, there are some requirements and guidelines regarding the sales arrangements for the sale of first-hand residential properties. For higher transparency, it is proposed that under the legislation the vendor should make public certain key information relating to logistical arrangements, such as the date and time for the commencement of sales, the sales venue(s), and the method to be used to determine the order of priority of purchasers at least three calendar days before the commencement of the sale. Such information should be provided on the vendor's website.

34. We note that at present there are no clear guidelines regulating the collection of money in connection with the reservation of units before the signing of the PASP. To ensure fairness to potential purchasers and for higher transparency, it is proposed to set out in the legislation a specific cut-off date before which reservations of units must not be accepted, whether or not payment of money is involved. The Steering Committee has proposed two possible cut-off dates for consideration : (i) the issuance of the price list; or (ii) the commencement of sale. While the proposed legislation has used the former for presentation purposes, we would like to hear the public's views on whether it is more appropriate to allow the collection of such money at an earlier time point i.e. upon the issuance of the price list, or at a later time point i.e. upon the commencement of sale.

(h) Conveyancing Procedures and Related Matters (Part 2 Division 7)

35. Most prospective purchasers of residential properties are not familiar with the conveyancing practices and procedures and rely to a large extent on the advice of estate agents and documents prepared by vendors/estate agents. There is room to enhance consumer protection in this area.

36. At present, for projects which are subject to the Consent Scheme, an Agreement for Sale and Purchaser (ASP) should be signed within five working days after the signing of a PASP, i.e. an ASP must be signed by the purchaser within three working days after signing a PASP and by the vendor within a further two working days thereafter. We have accepted the Steering Committee's recommendation to extend the present "five-working day signing requirement" to six working days and have reflected that in the proposed legislation, i.e., an ASP must be signed by the purchaser within three working days after signing a PASP and by the vendor within six working days after the signing of a PASP.

37. Currently, a purchaser under the Consent Scheme may unilaterally decide not to proceed with the signing of an ASP after the signing of a PASP and the cost of such a decision is capped at a prescribed percentage of the purchase price (i.e. 10% at present). The vendor, on the other hand, must proceed with the signing of an ASP, except where the purchaser who signed a PASP chooses not to sign an ASP.

38. It is suggested that the existing arrangement under the Consent Scheme should be adopted across the board to all sales of first-hand residential properties. In other words, if a purchaser decides not to proceed with the signing of an ASP within three working days after the signing of the PASP, he may do so unilaterally and the cost of such a decision is capped at a prescribed percentage of the purchase price. The vendor, on the other hand, must proceed to sign the ASP, except where the purchaser who signed the PASP chooses not to sign the ASP.

39. Though not the same as a cooling off period, some Steering Committee members noted that this arrangement allows the purchasers to withdraw from the transaction but at a cost. Having taken into account the particular characteristics of the residential property market in Hong Kong, including volatility of the market and the exuberance of speculative activities, and in order to prevent abuse by speculators and to deter hasty purchase decisions by potential purchasers, it is considered that the level of forfeiture should not be set too low. We consider 5% of the purchase price to be an appropriate level.

40. Currently, there are no standard PASPs for the sale of first-hand residential properties in the market and there is only a standard ASP for Consent Scheme projects. For developments outside the Consent Scheme, the Law Society of Hong Kong (Law Society) requires solicitors who act for both the vendor and the purchaser to include certain mandatory clauses in agreements for uncompleted and completed buildings. For better protection of consumers, it is proposed that the new legislation should stipulate certain major provisions as mandatory provisions in the PASP and ASP, and in doing so, to draw reference to the existing practices under the Consent Scheme and those mandated by the Law Society. To safeguard the interest of potential purchasers, the vendor will not be allowed to introduce any provisions to the PASP and ASP which negate the mandatory provisions.

41. The lists of mandatory provisions, which are prepared by drawing reference to the existing practices under the Consent Scheme and the Law Society, are set out at Annexes B-D of this consultation document as initial proposals. They will be refined in the light of views collected during this consultation exercise for inclusion in the proposed legislation.

(i) Disclosure of Information on Transactions (Part 2 Division 8)

42. The purchase of a residential property is likely to be the most significant investment an individual will make. Most people would like to gather as much information as they can before making a flat purchase decision. In particular, prospective purchasers would be interested to know the sales performance data such as transaction volume and the transaction prices of the units sold.

43. To ensure that prospective purchasers have easy access to transaction information, the proposed legislation requires the vendor to compile a single Register for a single development or a single phase of the development which should be updated continuously. The vendor should disclose transaction information in a standard format to be specified by the enforcement authority and made available at the sales office and on the vendor's website.

44. In order to provide timely transaction information to prospective purchasers, the vendor is required to disclose the relevant information within 24 hours upon the signing of a PASP. The vendor must also enter information concerning an ASP on the Register within one working day after he enters into an ASP. The Steering Committee has recommended that if an ASP is not duly signed, vendors should indicate this information on the seventh working day after the signing of the PASP. However, after taking into account the fact that the purchaser must sign an ASP within three working days after the signing of the PASP (see paragraph 36 above), failing which the transaction will not proceed further, we consider that the vendor should, where appropriate, indicate that an ASP is not duly signed on the fourth working day. This would enable more timely release of transaction information. The Register should also disclose whether a transaction would involve a director of the vendor, immediate family members¹⁰ of a director of the vendor or a manager¹¹ of the vendor. Vendors are required to maintain records of each transaction, including information on cancelled transactions, in the Register until the Assignment of the last unit in the development or in a phase of the development being offered for sale has been registered with the Land Registry.

¹⁰ Immediate family members include a parent, spouse or child.

¹¹ A 'manager' is as defined by section 2(1) of the Companies Ordinance (Cap 32).

(j) Exceptions and Additional Requirements (Part 2 Division 9)

45. Under particular circumstances, certain requirements on the sales brochure, the price lists and show flats may not be applicable and the proposed legislation grants specific exemptions to those properties. For first-hand uncompleted and completed residential properties sold on an “en bloc” basis under a single transaction, the proposed legislation exempts the developer from the requirements in respect of the sales brochure, the price list and show flats. This is because the purchaser(s) in this case are not general members of the public. However, the developer is still required to make public the transaction information. When the properties are subsequently offered for sale to individual flat purchasers, the owner(s) must observe all the requirements under the legislation.

46. In the case of first-hand completed flats to be sold to an existing tenant who has continuously rented the unit for a reasonable period of time of at least one year, the vendor can be exempted from the requirement relating to the provision of the sales brochure upon the written agreement of the prospective purchaser (i.e. the existing tenant) on waiving such a requirement. The vendor is however required to provide a Vendor’s Information Form (VIF) with essential and up-to-date information to the existing tenant who wishes to purchase the unit. The transaction information will also need to be disclosed by the vendor. The issuance of the price list is not applicable under such circumstances.

47. For flats which were first marketed when uncompleted but are left unsold after the issue of OP, thus becoming completed flats, the vendor is required to make available the latest version of the sales brochure, plus a VIF to prospective purchasers to provide some essential up-to-date information. We consider that there is no need under the circumstances to require a new sales brochure to be prepared by the vendor to avoid unnecessary duplication of work. All other requirements in respect of provision of price lists, show flats and disclosure of transaction information will apply.

48. To avoid creating a loophole in the proposed legislation, we consider that first-hand residential properties sold by way of auction and tender should not be exempted from the proposed legislation, except that the requirements on the issue of price lists do not apply, given the nature of such types of transactions.

(k) Advertisements (Part 3)

49. In the Hong Kong property market, information on new residential developments is usually first promulgated to the public through advertisements which may take many different forms such as advertisements in newspapers, on television, on the Internet, on public transport, etc. Some recent promotional approaches are very innovative and often sell more nebulous concepts like an idealistic lifestyle to be achieved by living in the new developments on sale. To ensure that potential purchasers will not be misled by advertisements, there is a need to enhance control over the information presented in advertisements for the sale of first-hand residential properties.

50. The proposed legislation requires that advertisements made by or on behalf of vendor must state that the vendor is the source of the information contained in the advertisements if that is the case. For uncompleted developments, the vendor should provide the anticipated completion date of the development to the best of its knowledge. As there is a standardized definition of saleable area but not GFA, unit prices of flats if quoted must be based on saleable area only. In respect of the provision of certain mandatory information in printed advertisements, the vendor has to comply with specific font size requirements.

51. For advertisements released on or after the sales brochure has been made available, the vendor should remind prospective purchasers to refer to the sales brochure. It is further proposed that inclusion of any false or misleading information in a material particular be prohibited in all forms of advertisements. A person who publishes or causes to be published an advertisement containing information that is false or misleading in a material particular and he knows that, or is reckless as to whether, the information is false or misleading as to a material particular, commits an offence. Specific defence provisions are provided where a contravention took place by an issue or a reproduction, retransmission or live broadcast of the advertisement.

(l) Misrepresentation and Dissemination of False or Misleading Information (Part 4)

52. From time to time, there has been public concern about misrepresentation and the dissemination of misleading or false information in respect of property sales. There have been suggestions that specific provisions prohibiting such behaviour in respect of the sale of first-hand residential properties should be introduced with a view to further protecting the purchasers' interests.

53. In the proposed legislation, a person who makes a fraudulent misrepresentation or a reckless misrepresentation for the purpose of inducing another person to purchase first-hand residential properties commits an offence. A person also commits an offence if he disseminates or authorizes information that is likely to induce another person to purchase first-hand residential properties and if he knows that, or is reckless as to whether, the information is false or misleading as to a material fact. Specific defence provisions are provided for false or misleading information which is disseminated or authorized by an issue or a reproduction, retransmission or live broadcast.

(m) Penalties and Defence Provisions (Part 5 and relevant provisions in Part 2, Part 3, Part 4 and Part 6)

54. In addition to offences in paragraphs 51 and 53, the proposed legislation sets out specific requirements on the provision of key information in the form of sales brochures, price lists, show flats and transaction data, etc. to protect purchasers of first-hand residential properties. There is a need to set out clearly the types and levels of penalties for breaches of the requirements and the time limit for prosecution. The penalties should be fixed at appropriate levels to serve as an effective deterrent.

55. The proposed penalty levels are determined by reference to various general principles : (i) the penalty for minor offences that are regulatory in nature (e.g. a failure to provide building plans for free public inspection, and failure to deposit sales brochures with specified authorities within the required timeframe) should be subject to a fine at level 6 (i.e. $100,000); (ii) for offences that may directly affect and potentially bring financial loss to prospective purchasers (e.g. failure to disclose transaction information), the proposed penalties are a fine of $500,000 to $1,000,000; and (iii) regarding serious offences (e.g. misrepresentation and dissemination of false or misleading information), proposed penalties range from a fine of $500,000 to $5,000,000 plus imprisonment up to a maximum of 6 months to 7 years. Penalties for different offences have been laid down in the relevant sections of the proposed legislation.

56. The above proposals are made having regard to the Steering Committee's recommendations. However, having taken into consideration relativity among similar offences under the proposed legislation, penalties for certain offences have been adjusted.

57. The proposed legislation provides for defence provisions as appropriate, including that of due diligence, for offences under the legislation. For specific defence provisions provided for issue or a reproduction, retransmission or live broadcast, please refer to paragraphs 51 and 53 above.

(n) Liability of Company Officers for Offence Committed by Company and Prosecution Time Limit (Part 5 Division 3)

58. It is proposed that if a company commits an offence under the proposed legislation and if the commission of the offence is aided, abetted, counselled, procured or induced by an officer of the company or the offence is committed with the consent or connivance of, or is attributable to any recklessness on the part of, an officer of the company, such officer (i.e. director, manager and secretary of the corporation) should also be guilty of the offence and shall be liable to be punished accordingly. The definition of "officer" of a corporation is modeled on other relevant legislation, i.e., the Trade Descriptions Ordinance (Cap. 362) and the Securities and Future Ordinance (Cap. 571).

59. If no prosecution time limit is proposed in the new legislation, section 26 of the Magistrates Ordinance (Cap. 227) which specifies that "In any case of an offence, other than an indictable offence, where no time is limited by any enactment for making any complaint or laying any information in respect of such offence, such complaint shall be made or such information laid within 6 months from the time when the matter of such complaint or information respectively arose" would apply to the summary offences in the proposed legislation. The Steering Committee considers it necessary to extend the time limit for prosecuting summary offences to 3 years. This recommendation is reflected in the proposed legislation.

(o) Enforcement Authority (Part 6)

60. To effectively enforce the proposed legislation, it is proposed that an enforcement authority should be set up to (a) monitor the sales of first-hand residential properties (including keeping track of the timely release of sales brochures and price lists and the updating of transaction information for individual developments, and conducting visits to show flats); (b) handle complaints and undertake investigations as appropriate; (c) issue practice guidelines and prescribe forms; (d) maintain data and statistics; and (e) carry out public education. The enforcement authority will be vested with appropriate and necessary investigation powers under the legislation.

61. To facilitate early implementation of the legislation and to maximize the use of public resources, the enforcement authority is proposed to be established under the Housing Branch of THB. It is also recommended that the Government should keep open the option of transforming the enforcement authority to a statutory body at an appropriate time.

62. We have carefully considered the scope and type of requirements to be met by vendors which should be covered in the proposed legislation. Key and important requirements, such as the provision of the sales brochure, price lists and transaction information etc., should be stipulated in the legislation. Procedural and logistical requirements, such as giving notice of certain information to designated authorities prior to the commencement of flat sales and the maintenance of order at sales offices, should be set out in the form of administrative guidelines to be issued by the new and dedicated enforcement authority which will be set up under the proposed legislation. This approach is flexible and would enable the enforcement authority to react quickly to changes in circumstances as they arise.

(p) Online Property Information Platform (Part 6, Clause 67)

63. We note that, at present, the general public may obtain information on new residential developments from different sources, including the websites maintained by vendors and various Government bureaux/departments. To achieve market transparency and to facilitate easy access to information in the private residential property market, it is proposed to establish an online centralized information platform providing comprehensive property market information regarding first-hand private residential properties in Hong Kong. Vendors are required under the legislation to provide sales brochures, price lists and transaction information to the designated body which will develop and administer the platform. Failure to provide the requisite information to the designated body will constitute an offence. The proposed legislation authorizes the enforcement authority to set up the platform or delegate its functions in this regard to a public officer or a person whom it thinks fit.

Warning to Purchasers

1. Before you sign the formal agreement for sale and purchase which you have to sign if you go on with your purchase you should instruct a solicitor to protect your interests and to ensure that your purchase is properly completed.
2. You can instruct your own independent solicitor to act for you to conduct the purchase or you can instruct the vendor's solicitor to act for you as well as for the vendor.
3. YOU ARE RECOMMENDED TO INSTRUCT YOUR OWN SOLICITOR, who will be able, at every stage of your purchase, to give you independent advice.
4. If you instruct the solicitor for the vendor to act for you as well and if a conflict arises between you and the vendor he will not be able to protect your interests and you will then have to instruct your own solicitor anyway, in which case the total fees you will have to pay may be higher than the fees which you would have had to pay if you had instructed your own solicitor in the first place.
5. You are free to choose whichever option you prefer. Please think carefully before deciding whether to instruct your own independent solicitor, or the vendor's solicitor, to protect your interests.
