Housing Renaissance

Here's How I get despaired -

By talking to a rental dealer

As I went to an estate dealer office and saw a 350-sq.ft. Suite listing

“hey bro, may I rent this suite?”

“It'll be $12000, utilities excluding.”

Yikes... my goodness, did I get it wrong? In last week it's only $9000 including utilities!

So I asked some more, “Mate wasn't it $9000-for-everything? It beefed up in a blink!”

“Yup... anything else I could do with inflation?”

I was somehow pissed off at that moment

And when I see other listing - what kind of hell is this? - $8000 for a 250 sqft flat?

Now someone could say “just get another one if you can't afford it” folks please help hushing their mouths of nonsense

Now you didn't see it; a chain of daytime robbery by metrorail, LINK REIT, MPF, and stuff; ever had a single word for them, hipsters?

All you could do is helping vandals, enjoying our frustration; not bites for skyrocketing prices and fares

Instead you scold who helps you; those who strive for minimum wage, working hour limits are hooligans across to your words - without any utilisation of brain.

I still could not understand how could folks decouple from politics - to defunct a water reservoir or not, to evict villages for public housing or not, to shut down a golf pitch or not - NOTONE of their issues are exempted from political struggles.

Remember this.

Now Chinese enterprises occupy the whole of construction work, and even house leases! Hong Kong ministers won't even give a swing on it - for what? Confronting with them could set yourself on fire!

You would say I don't have to escalate the problem to parliament since what to eat tonight is far more practical... good. And you know how they're doing?

Ministers and MP's could do nothing but expressing "concerns", if not solely drawing up petition banners. What's else? Free body exams? Free snack giveaways?

All they did were having endless press-ccs, and flipped to no vote when division bell goes on, do your health management and had your vote (by $66000 monthly) so that the could have another 4-year-cycle on this and you're calling it "efforts"?

We're simply finding suites with proper space, comfortable settlement at economy costs - nothing else.

But if fair price cannot buy it, the crawling space didn't fit (and subject to landlords' promise), my fellow folks:

How can you tolerate this?

Are prices land sliding when the "Tenancy Regulation" is on, lords? And when tents were on highway #4?

Did we fail to afford a house or rent just because we only save money for trips to Japonic archipelagos?

Will There be my sharr of bucks if pearl river bridges, West Kowloon Int'l come into use promptly?

To Hong Kong, democracy is not urgent though; but eliminating accommodation for three provinces of Hong Kong territories, is keaimminent.

My fellow folks, should we make it rock and roll - by tuning away from nonsense-producing politicians, and stopping them from further betrayal?

It's easy - in case you try!

We endorse our honorable gentleman, Ted Hui, with his recent heroic and patriotic deed for the sake of healthy development of constitutional institutions.

We also urge for a formal investigation on fraudulent construction works on all sites within Shatin-Central projects.
