In its reply to a question raised by this Council on 16 September last year, the Executive Authorities said the review on the New Territories Small House Policy would be completed in early 1999. However, the Executive Authorities reportedly told the United Nations Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women that the said review would be completed by the end of this year. In this connection, will the Executive Authorities inform this Council:

- (a) the exact point in time by which the said review will be completed;
- (b) the respective number of applications approved for building small houses in 1998 and on the waiting list at present; and
- (c) the average waiting time for applications for building small houses to be approved?
