Formulating a bicycle-friendly policy

“Green commuting” is the adoption of commuting modes that have the least environmental impact. It is to achieve the aims of reducing pollution, saving costs, enhancing energy efficiency and fostering health. Cycling is one of the ideal low-carbon commuting options. This Council urges the Government to formulate a bicycle-friendly policy, improve the bicycle-related facilities on urban roads, and earnestly implement measures to designate bicycle as a major mode of transport. Members of the public will then be able to commute by bicycle in a convenient and safe environment.
