

《Interception of Communications and Surveillance Bill》

Committee Stage Amendments Proposed by Hon. Margaret Ng

Explanatory Note

Underlying Principles

1. The proposed legislation must provide effective protection for the freedom and privacy of communication as required by Article 30 of the Basic Law.
2. It must define clearly the grounds upon which interception and surveillance may be carried out, and these must be narrowly drafted so as to confine any intrusion within what is permitted by Article 30.
3. The legal procedure set up by the proposal must be capable of protecting the freedom of private communication from any intrusion which goes beyond what is permitted, and must be such as to prevent abuse. Two fundamental requirements are:
 - (a) independent authorization and monitoring
 - (b) firewalls preventing interception or the information obtained from being used for purposes other than the original purpose for which the interception was authorised
4. We consider that the Bill as proposed, even with the Government's CSAs fails to meet the requirements of Article 30, especially when considered together with Article 29 and Article 39.
5. The CSAs we proposed (see Annex) are an attempt to remedy the most glaring weaknesses of the Bill. But even with our amendments, we remain extremely concerned about enacting such a legislation for the reasons we state below.
6. The freedom and privacy of communication is a constitutional right and is fundamental to all personal and political freedom. It is not to be curtailed save with the consensus of the community. In the absence of genuine and adequate public consultation, LegCo should not take upon itself to compromise such rights and freedoms.
7. The central provisions of the Bill put the burden of authorizing interception on judges, and yet deprive judges of the judicial procedure which ensures independence and fairness. The authorization procedure offends the principles of open justice, hearing both sides and a reasoned decision which is open to review. This implicates the Judiciary in a repugnant executive process, and by mixing the judicial and non-judicial functions, contaminates the former. We would have preferred either to construct a different system with safeguards without implicating the Judiciary, or, alternatively, construct a set of procedure which gives due regard to judicial principles. However, we are not allowed to do so because of the self-induced deadline.

8. We are extremely disturbed by the fact that while the direct “product” of interception and covert surveillance obtained by exceptional means – permitted only by necessity – will be used to generate intelligence the use of which is unregulated under the legislation or any other enactment. The Government officials have freely admitted this. This makes a mockery of any purported safeguards proposed in the Bill.
9. The ultimate oversight authority of the system is the Commissioner who reports to the Chief Executive, not a Tribunal which involves the public or its representative, as is the case with the UK and the US. In the UK, it is the Select Committee of the House of Commons on interception and surveillance, and in the US, it is the House and Senate Intelligence Committee which play this role. There is no attempt in the HKSAR to balance secrecy with accountability – the public spied on is kept from beginning to end in the dark.
10. Conscious of all this, we consider it imperative to build into the Bill a mechanism for review or repeal of the entire legislation in consultation with the public. Australia’s anti-terrorism law is an example of the former, and the “sunset clause” of the US Patriot Act is an example of the latter. We have not included either into our CSA at this stage in deference to the discussion in the Bills Committee.

Mechanism of main CSAs

We use as base document the digital version of the blue bill as introduced into LegCo, and not the later versions submitted to the Bills Committee incorporating the CSAs proposed by the Government.

Explanatory Memorandum

The object of this Bill is to regulate the conduct of interception of communications and the use of surveillance devices by or on behalf of public officers.

2. The Bill contains 6 Parts and 5 Schedules.

Part 1—Preliminary

3. Part 1 provides for preliminary matters—

(a) Clause 2 contains the definitions with reference to which the provisions of the Bill are to be interpreted. In particular—

(i) “interception” is defined to mean the carrying out of any intercepting act in respect of communications, and for that purpose—

— “communication” is defined to mean any communication transmitted by a postal service or by a telecommunications system; and

— “intercepting act” is defined to mean the inspection of any of the contents of a communication, in the course of its transmission, by persons other than its sender or its intended recipient;

(ii) “covert surveillance” is defined to mean systematic surveillance carried out with the use of any surveillance device for the purposes of a specific investigation or operation where, among other conditions that apply, any person who is the subject of the surveillance is entitled to a reasonable expectation of privacy; and, for the purposes of the Bill, covert surveillance is further divided into “Type 1 surveillance” and “Type 2 surveillance” as defined under their respective definitions; and

(iii) “department” is defined, in relation to interception cases, to mean the Customs and Excise Department, the Hong Kong Police Force, and the Independent Commission Against Corruption, and, in relation to covert surveillance cases, to mean the same departments as well as the Immigration Department.

(b) Clause 3 sets out the conditions for the issue or renewal, or the continuance, of prescribed authorizations under the Bill. Under those conditions, any interception or covert surveillance sought to be authorized should be carried out for the purpose of preventing or detecting serious crime or for the purpose of protecting public security, and should, upon taking into consideration various specified matters, also be proportionate to such purpose.

Part 2—Prohibition on Interception and Covert Surveillance

4. Part 2 contains the prohibition provisions—

(a) Clause 4 provides that no public officers shall, directly or through any other person, carry out any interception. This prohibition does not apply if the interception is carried out pursuant to a prescribed authorization, or is carried out in respect of telecommunications transmitted by specified radiocommunications, or is otherwise authorized, permitted or required to be carried out under any other enactments.

(b) Clause 5 provides that no public officers shall, directly or through any other person, carry out any covert surveillance. This prohibition does not apply if the covert surveillance is carried out pursuant to a prescribed authorization.

Part 3—Prescribed Authorizations, etc.

5. Part 3 contains provisions relating to prescribed authorization, and is divided into 6 Divisions—

(a) Division 1 (clauses 6 and 7) provides for the appointment and designation of panel judges and authorizing officers, being relevant authorities having functions to approve applications for the issue or renewal of prescribed authorizations, etc. under

Part 3—

(i) ~~Clause 6 provides for the appointment of 3 to 6 eligible judges as panel judges by the Chief Executive on the recommendation of the Chief Justice. It also p~~Provides that Schedule 2 applies to the procedures and other matters relating to panel judges.

(ii) Clause 7 provides for the designation of officers not below a rank equivalent to that of senior superintendent of police as authorizing officers by the head of the departments.

(b) Division 2 (clauses 8 to 13) provides for the issue of judicial authorizations for interception or Type 1 surveillance, on the application to a panel judge by an officer of a department with the approval of a directorate officer of that department, and further for the renewal of judicial authorizations. Subject to the conditions set out in clause 3, a judicial authorization may be issued or renewed for a maximum term of 3 months.

(c) Division 3 (clauses 14 to 19) provides for the issue of executive authorizations for Type 2 surveillance, on the application to an authorizing officer of a department by an officer of that department, and further for the renewal of executive authorizations. Subject to the conditions set out in clause 3, an executive authorization may be issued or renewed for a maximum term of 3 months.

(d) Division 4 (clauses 20 to 24) provides for the issue of emergency authorizations for interception or Type 1 surveillance by the head of departments in any emergency cases where it is not practicable for judicial authorizations to be obtained from panel judges. However, while the conditions set out in clause 3 also apply to the issue of the emergency authorization, the emergency authorization is only to last for a maximum term of 48 hours and in any event is subject to confirmation on an application to a panel judge by an officer of the department concerned. Where the panel judge does not confirm the emergency authorization, he may order the revocation or variation of the emergency authorization, and may also order the destruction of any of the information obtained pursuant to the emergency authorization.

(e) Division 5 (clauses 25 to 28) provides for the alternative of making oral applications for the issue or renewal of prescribed authorizations in specified circumstances, notwithstanding the requirements for written applications otherwise applicable to prescribed authorizations under Part 3. Where any oral application is made, supporting information may be provided orally, and the determination in respect of the application may also be delivered orally. However, the determination under an oral authorization is also subject to confirmation on an application to the relevant authority by whom the oral application has been determined. Where the relevant authority does not confirm the prescribed authorization or the renewal issued or granted under the determination, he may order the revocation or variation of the prescribed authorization or renewal, and may also order the destruction of any of the information obtained pursuant to the prescribed authorization or renewal.

(f) Division 6 (clauses 29 to 37) contains general provisions applicable to prescribed authorizations. Clauses 29 to 31 deal with matters that may be authorized, required or provided for by prescribed authorizations. Clauses 32 to 37 then provide for the issue, after a prescribed authorization has ceased to have effect, of a device retrieval warrant for the retrieval of devices previously installed in or on premises or objects pursuant to the prescribed authorization. The application is to be made to a panel judge by an officer of a department, and on considering the application, the panel judge may issue a device retrieval warrant for a maximum term of 3 months.

Part 4—The Commissioner

6. Part 4 contains provisions relating to the Commissioner on Interception of Communications and Surveillance, and is divided into 5 Divisions—

(a) Division 1 (clauses 38 and 39) provides for the establishment of the office of the Commissioner and for his functions. The Commissioner is to be appointed by the Chief Executive on the recommendation of the Chief Justice. His functions are to oversee the compliance by departments and their officers with the relevant requirements (cf. definition of “relevant requirement” in clause 2), and in particular to perform functions set out in Divisions 2 to 4, and other functions prescribed by regulation made under clause 62 and generally by the Bill and by other enactments.

(b) Division 2 (clauses 40 and 41) provides for reviews conducted by the Commissioner on compliance by departments and their officers with the relevant requirements. The Commissioner is also to notify departments concerned of any case where he has made any findings that there has been failure by any department or any of its officers to comply with any relevant requirement.

(c) Division 3 (clauses 42 to 46) provides for examinations carried out by the Commissioner, on the application by any person who believes that he is the subject of any interception or covert surveillance carried out by a department. The Commissioner is to consider the case by adopting the judicial review principles and by reference to written submissions made to him. After consideration of the case, he is to notify the applicant whether he has found the case in the applicant’s favour, and may, if he thinks fit, make an order for the payment by the Government to the applicant of a sum of compensation, which may include compensation for injury to feelings. The Commissioner is also to notify the department concerned of any case where he has found the case in the applicant’s favour.

(d) Division 4 (clauses 47 to 50) provides for the submission by the Commissioner to the Chief Executive of annual reports containing specified information, and then requires a copy of the reports to be laid on the table of the Legislative Council. The Commissioner may also from time to time make further reports to the Chief Executive, and may also make recommendations to the Secretary for Security and the departments on specified matters. (e) Division 5 (clauses 51 to 53) contains further provisions relating to the performance of functions by the Commissioner. The Commissioner may impose requirements on public officers and other persons to provide information to him, and may require officers of departments to prepare reports in respect of cases of interception or covert surveillance handled by the departments. In addition, the head of a department is to keep the Commissioner informed of any case in which he considers that there may have been any case of failure by the department or any of its officers to comply with any relevant requirement.

Part 5—Further Safeguards

7. Part 5 provides for further safeguards in respect of interception and covert surveillance carried out by departments—

(a) Under clauses 54 and 55, a department is to conduct regular reviews on the compliance by officers of the department with the relevant requirements, and on the performance by authorizing officers of the department of any function under the Bill. Any interception or covert surveillance carried out pursuant to a prescribed authorization is to be discontinued once the officer by whom a regular review is conducted, or the officer in charge of the operation, considers that the conditions set out in clause 3 are not met, or that the relevant purpose of the prescribed authorization has been achieved (cf. definition of “relevant purpose” in clause 2). In addition, the officer in charge of the operation may at any time cause the operation to be discontinued. In any case where any operation is discontinued, the relevant authority by whom the prescribed authorization authorizing the operation has been issued or renewed is to be notified, and then to revoke the prescribed authorization.

(b) Under clause 56, each department shall make arrangements to ensure that any product obtained pursuant to a prescribed authorization (cf. definition of “protected product” in clause 2) is to be dealt with in accordance with specified arrangements, in order to minimize the extent to which the product is disclosed or copied, or subject to unauthorized or accidental access, processing, erasure or other use, and to ensure its timely destruction.

(c) Under clause 57, each department is also to keep a proper record in respect of specified matters, including matters relating to applications for the issue or renewal of prescribed authorizations or device retrieval warrants, and other matters provided for in the Bill. The record is, to the extent that it relates to any prescribed authorization or device retrieval warrant, to be kept for a minimum term of 2 years after the prescribed authorization or device retrieval warrant ceases to have effect, and is in any event to be kept at least until any relevant pending or anticipated proceedings, etc. have been finally disposed of. The part of the record that relates to other matters is to be kept for a minimum term of 2 years.

(d) By virtue of clause 58, in any proceedings before any court (other than proceedings for specified offences (cf. definition of “relevant offence” in clause 58)), any product obtained pursuant to a prescribed authorization for interception of a communication transmitted by a telecommunications system (cf. definition of “telecommunications interception product” in clause 58) shall not be admissible in evidence and shall not be made available to any party, and any evidence or question which tends to suggest matters relating to any application for the issue or renewal of any relevant prescribed authorizations, and other related matters shall not be adduced or asked. However, the clause also provides that it does not prohibit disclosure in specified cases where the disclosure is required in the interests of justice, etc.

(e) Clause 59 further provides that the Secretary for Security is to issue a code of practice for the purpose of providing practical guidance to officers of the departments in respect of matters provided for in the Bill.

Part 6—Miscellaneous

8. Part 6 contains miscellaneous provisions dealing with minor defects of prescribed authorizations and device retrieval warrants, immunity, regulation, and amendment of schedules. In addition, clause 64 seeks to repeal the Interception of Communications Ordinance (Cap. 532) and to introduce consequential amendments to ordinances including the Post Office Ordinance (Cap. 98), the Telecommunications Ordinance (Cap. 106) and other appropriate ordinances. Further, clause 65 provides for a transitional arrangement so that, among other matters, any materials obtained by way of interception pursuant to an order issued or renewed under section 33 of the Telecommunications Ordinance (Cap. 106) before the commencement of the Bill as enacted are also subject to clauses 56 and 58 as if they were product obtained pursuant to a prescribed authorization.
