Question: In Question Serial No. CMAB002, I have asked the Administration whether the Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC) has sufficient provision to conduct the various activities for promoting non-discrimination on the grounds of sexual orientation. The Bureau has replied that "the EOC has no plan to allocate funding to conduct publicity activities and studies on promoting non-discrimination on the ground of sexual orientation because the issue is not directly within the EOC's ambit." However, according to Dr. York CHOW who has assumed the position of Chairperson of EOC, preventing discrimination against those of different sexual orientation is his priority task during his tenure with the EOC. Why is there such a great discrepancy (between the remarks made by the Bureau and the Chairperson)? Who has gone wrong, the Secretary for Constitutional and Mainland Affairs or Dr. CHOW?

Asked by: Hon. CHAN Chi-chuen

Reply:

The Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC) is an independent statutory body established to perform the functions vested upon it by the 4 existing anti-discrimination Ordinances (i.e. the Sex Discrimination Ordinance, Disability Discrimination Ordinance, Family Status Discrimination Ordinance and Race Discrimination Ordinance). At present, the EOC's functions include, inter alia, the elimination of discrimination in the specific areas covered by the 4 Ordinances on the grounds of sex, race, family status and disability. The public education and publicity activities on elimination of discrimination on the ground of sexual orientation and gender identity are implemented by the Gender Identity and Sexual Orientation Unit of the Constitutional and Mainland Affairs Bureau.

2. To our understanding, the EOC may wish to discuss the question of discrimination on the ground of sexual orientation and gender identity, including whether and, if so, how to conduct studies and to follow up with the Administration on the need to enact legislation on this subject. The Administration will continue to liaise with EOC in this regard.

Question: In its reply (Reply Serial No. CMAB004), the Administration expressed that it did not keep a separate account of expenditure for conducting social events or exchange programmes with offices set up by the Central People's Government in the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (CPG offices) though it indicated that exchange programmes with CPG offices have been conducted. Would the Administration advise this Committee on the date, content and nature of, and attendance at the exchange programmes or social events with CPG offices over the past 5 years? If not, what are the reasons?

Asked by: Hon. CHAN Ka-lok, Kenneth

Reply:

Policy bureaux and departments of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR) maintain necessary working relationships with the offices set up by the Central People's Government in the HKSAR with a view to enhancing mutual understanding and exchanges. The form of exchanges varies, including social events and attendance at ceremonies. We did not keep a separate account to capture related expenditure (if any).

Question: Pursuant to the reply number. CMAB013, the Administration is requested to provide information on:

- (a) the scope and types of business covered by the 154 investment projects undertaken by Invest Hong Kong in 2013, and the impact of the projects on Hong Kong; and
- (b) the business opportunities these projects are expected to generate for Hong Kong's business sector (especially for small and medium sized enterprises) and the types of business that Hong Kong's small and medium sized enterprises could participate.

Asked by: Hon. CHEUNG Wah-fung, Christopher

Reply:

The 154 investment projects are companies from the Mainland and Taiwan which Invest Hong Kong (InvestHK) expects to help set up or expand their business in Hong Kong within the next 18 months. In line with the trend of InvestHK's completed projects from the Mainland and Taiwan markets in recent years, we expect that the majority of the new investment projects in 2013 will come from the financial services, innovation and technology, tourism and hospitality as well as industrial and logistics services. These new projects will help broaden the base of our economy as well as bring in new capital, jobs and business opportunities for a variety of sectors in Hong Kong, including financial services, trading and other professional services.

Question: Pursuant to the reply nos. CMAB034, the Administration is requested to provide further breakdown of expenditure on human rights education in the Education Bureau, and breakdown of expenditure by the promotion of specific values or civic concept in the Committee on the Promotion of Civic Education.

Asked by: Hon. IP Kin-yuen

Reply:

Human rights education in schools and the work of the Committee on the Promotion of Civic Education (CPCE) fall under the purview of the Education Bureau and Home Affairs Bureau respectively.

2. Human rights education is incorporated in different Key Learning Areas/subjects of the school curriculum in primary and secondary schools, such as General Studies at primary level, Life and Society at junior secondary level, and Liberal Studies at senior secondary level. There are relevant topics in the curricula of these Key Learning Areas/subjects to enhance students' understanding towards concepts related to human rights education. Expenditures for the related curriculum development work, which includes promotion in schools, the provision of professional development programmes for school heads and teachers, production of learning and teaching resources, provision of learning activities for students and collaboration with other government departments and bodies, are absorbed by the recurrent expenditures of relevant sections of the Education Bureau. These are integral parts of the curriculum; hence, we are unable to provide a separate breakdown on the expenditure incurred in this aspect.

3. The CPCE promotes civic education outside schools through various channels such as sponsoring community organisations to organise activities, publications, promotional programmes, production of TV programmes, thematic workshops and exhibitions. The activities may promote multiple core values at the same time. As all these promotional activities constitute an integral part of CPCE's expenditure, a separate breakdown of expenditure on activities promoting a specific value or civic concept is not available.

Question: Pursuant to the discussion on the work of the Economic and Trade Offices (ETO) in the Mainland, the Administration is requested to provide information of the work of the Shanghai ETO in helping Hong Kong people facing problems in the Mainland, including disseminating infection prevention information and guidelines, etc.

Asked by: Hon. LAM Kin-fung, Jeffrey

Reply:

The Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office in Shanghai (the Shanghai ETO) has been assisting Hong Kong residents in its coverage area (viz. Shanghai Municipality and the provinces of Jiangsu, Zhejiang, Anhui and Hubei) through the provision of information and assistance and the organisation of activities such as seminars and gatherings.

2. Since cases of human infection of Influenza A (H7N9) in the eastern region of the Mainland were reported in March 2013, the Shanghai ETO has been closely monitoring the development through various sources, such as close liaison with relevant government authorities and local media and tracking of relevant government and media websites. To keep the Hong Kong residents and groups in its coverage area abreast of latest developments, the Shanghai ETO has been issuing notices to all Hong Kong chambers of commerce and other Hong Kong stakeholder groups in the area. These notices set out information on the latest developments about cases of human infection, the precautionary measures to take, and means to obtain further information and assistance. In addition, the Shanghai ETO proactively sought to establish contact with visiting student groups from Hong Kong that came to its notice so that the latter might contact the ETO if they required any assistance.

3. The Shanghai ETO will continue to keep contact with various Hong Kong resident groups in the area to ensure timely and effective dissemination of information and provision of assistance as and when necessary.

Question: As set out in Reply Serial No. CMAB062, from July 2009 to the end of February 2013, the Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC) has received 192 complaints on race discrimination. Question: As set out in Reply Serial No. CMAB007, there will be a net increase of nine posts this year. In regard to the additional posts, what is the expenditure involved? For each of these posts, what is the additional expenditure involved?

Asked by: Hon. MAK Mei-kuen, Alice

Reply:

The total expenditure to be involved for creation of 10 new posts will be about $3.9 million, to be offset by the reduction in expenditure of about $0.3 million due to the deletion of one post within 2013-14. Therefore, the expenditure involved for the net increase of nine posts in 2013-14 is about $3.6 million.

2. The additional expenditure involved for the new posts is set out below –
- (a) $2.6 million for six time-limited posts, including one Administrative Officer, one Senior Executive Officer, one Executive Officer II and three Assistant Clerical Officer, to be created when public consultation on the two electoral methods for 2016 and 2017 is launched;
 - (b) $0.6 million for one Executive Officer I post for supporting work on promotion of the Basic Law;
 - (c) $0.3 million for one Supplies Supervisor I post for strengthening administrative support for the Constitutional and Mainland Affairs Bureau;
 - (d) $0.2 million for one Assistant Clerical Officer post for strengthening housekeeping work of the Mainland and Taiwan Offices; and
 - (e) $0.2 million for one time-limited Assistant Clerical Officer post for strengthening clerical support for “homeland relationship”.

The above creation of 10 new posts will be offset by the deletion of one time-limited Executive Officer II post in 2013-14.

Question: With regard to the work of the Office of the Privacy Commissioner for Personal Data (PCPD), the Administration will allocate $63.4 million to the PCPD in 2013-14. Why is there a multi-fold increase in funding over the past few years? Please give a detailed breakdown of the increased funding and the work items. Would the Administration explain its criteria on allocation of funds? Has factors such as the need for additional human resources in the wake of major incidents of personal data leakage in recent years and the need for salary increases for staff been considered?

The PCPD pointed out that, the estimated average time taken to settle a simple complaint case is 44 days since 2010. However, it is estimated that there will be an increase of 5 days in the estimated average time taken to settle a simple case. Would the Administration explain its criteria on setting the average time? What is the actual time taken to settle a case? Does the PCPD have any plan to increase its manpower and what are the details of such plan? If no, what are the reasons?

Asked by: Hon. MOK, Charles Peter

Reply:

In order to support the work of the PCPD, the Administration has increased the allocation to the PCPD over the past 6 years as follows:

Financial Year	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14
Actual Expenditure ($million)	36.2	42.9	45.1	49.9	54.9	62.6 (revised estimate)	63.4 (original estimate)

2. The increased funding is for, inter alia, creating additional posts, enhancing publicity/education measures, launching the legal assistance scheme, and meeting increases in salaries. In considering the allocation for the PCPD, the Administration has taken into account all relevant factors, including the operational needs of the PCPD and the Government's financial position.

3. The estimated and actual average time taken to settle a simple complaint case since 2010 is as follows:

	2010	2011	2012	2013
Estimate (days)	44	44	44	44
Actual (days)	44	37	39	-

The estimated figure has remained at 44 days throughout this period. This target was exceeded in 2011 and 2012. PCPD will continue to strive to excel in 2013 through special dedicated efforts.

4. An annual recurrent provision of $8.4 million has been allocated to the PCPD from 2012-13 onwards to prepare for and implement the new provisions under the Personal Data (Privacy) (Amendment) Ordinance 2012. Furthermore, an additional annual recurrent provision of $1.3 million is allocated to the PCPD for this purpose in 2013-14.

If yes, what are the details? If no, does the Government have any plan to formulate such guidelines? If there is no such a plan, what are the reasons?
- (d) In recent years, governments around the world have introduced systems through which citizens may provide their online proposals. They have also undertaken that they would give a formal online response if a certain number of citizens have indicated their support of the proposals. Did the Administration look into ways to improve the existing channels for collecting public opinions on the Internet and evaluate the feasibility of collecting public opinions on the Internet through the above systems. If yes, what are the details? If no, what are the reasons?

Head: 163: Registration and Electoral Office

Subhead (No. & title):

Programme: Electoral Services

Controlling Officer: Chief Electoral Officer

Director of Bureau: Secretary for Constitutional and Mainland Affairs

Question: The Registration and Electoral Office (REO) stated that it will explore the feasibility of adopting more information technology to enhance the electoral process. In this connection, what items does the REO plan to explore? Regarding the use of "electronic systems" to check registration particulars of electors at polling stations, assist vote count, improve voter registration, etc., what are the estimated expenditures for the related work plans?

Asked by: Hon. MOK, Charles Peter

Reply:

About $2.5 million has been allocated to the Registration and Electoral Office for conducting a feasibility and technical study on its information technology system. The study will include a comprehensive review of the performance and capacity of the information technology system, including:

- (a) whether upgrading or enhancing hardware and software components of the existing information technology system is required;
- (b) the feasibility of providing an electronic platform to facilitate on-line enquiry of registration status by registered electors;
- (c) the feasibility of employing information technology to facilitate checking of registration status of electors at polling stations; and
- (d) the feasibility of applying information technology to enhance the efficiency of the counting of votes and the dissemination of counting results.

2. As the personal data of registered electors is involved and it is essential to ensure the smooth conduct of elections, any information technology options to be identified for consideration must be based on mature and well proven technology meeting the highest standard of security. Moreover, to uphold the public's confidence in the electoral system, the measures to be implemented must be simple, transparent and easy to understand. The feasibility study is still underway. It is too early to make any estimate on the expenditures that will be required.
