I. Consultation Document on Methods for Selecting the Chief Executive in 2017 and for Forming the Legislative Council in 2016
[LC Paper No. CB(2)628/13-14(01)]

The Panel received views on the Consultation Document on Methods for Selecting the Chief Executive ("CE") in 2017 and for Forming the Legislative Council ("LegCo") in 2016 ("Consultation Document") from a total of 159 deputations/individuals. A record of the 159 deputations /individuals and the submissions received is in Appendix.

Discussion

Method for selecting CE in 2017

2. Dr Priscilla LEUNG emphasized the need to discuss the methods for selecting CE in 2017 and for forming LegCo in 2016 on the basis of the legal framework constituted by the Basic Law ("BL") and the relevant Interpretation and Decisions of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress ("NPCSC"). She invited views from the deputations on the composition of the Nominating Committee ("NC") that would be formed to nominate CE candidates. Mr KWOK Tak-leung of Property Agencies Association said that the real estate agents sector should be represented on NC. He considered that the public would no longer consider that the election of CE in 2017 was a small circle election, if the membership and composition of NC would be large and broad enough to represent adequately the views of various sectors of the community.

3. Ms Emily LAU asked the deputations which were supportive of capping the number of CE candidates how universal and equal suffrage could be achieved if a screening mechanism was put in place in the nomination procedures of CE to screen out certain candidates.

4. Mr HOU Chun-kau, co-opted member of the Community Affairs Committee of Sham Shui Po District Council, responded that as the CE-elect had to be appointed by the Central People's Government ("CPG"), the CE-elect should be one who was trusted by CPG to be able to perform his/her official duties. Mr YEUN Chung-man was concerned that if the number of CE candidates was not restricted, a large number of candidates might turn up to run for the election and thereby complicated the procedures of the election.

5. Mr CHAN Chi-chuen said that he did not subscribe to the view that too many CE candidates running for the 2017 CE election would complicate the electoral procedures. He queried whether the number of candidates for District Council elections and LegCo elections should also be capped. Mr CHAN Chit-kwai, Central and Western District Council member, said that as a nomination threshold was needed to be set and there would be a limit to the membership size of NC, he envisaged that NC could only nominate about five CE candidates.

6. Mr LEE Cheuk-yan considered that if the power to nominate CE candidates was only vested in NC, candidates from political parties with dissenting views would be screened out in the nomination procedures.

7. Referring to BL 39 where it was stated that "The provisions of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights ("ICCPR"), the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, and international labour conventions as applied to Hong Kong shall remain in force and shall be implemented through the laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.....", Mr Frederick FUNG stressed that when formulating proposals on the electoral reform, it had to be ensured that the rights to make nomination, to stand for election and to vote conformed to the principles of universal and equal suffrage stipulated in Article 25 of ICCPR. Mr Frederick FUNG sought the views of deputations on how to define behaviours that would be regarded as acting against the Central Authorities. Mr CHAN Kuen-hong considered that a person whose acts contravened BL and the law should not be considered as a suitable CE candidate.

8. Ms Emily LAU said that there was no provision in BL imposing the restriction that one who did not "love the country and Hong Kong" could not stand for the CE election. She sought the views of deputations on this additional restriction as mentioned by Mainland officials. Mr SIN Chi-ming responded that he did not see any problem with the restriction. He added that the number of CE candidates should also be restricted by legal means.

Action

9. Mr HON Lin-shan of League in Defense of HK Freedoms emphasized that apart from safeguarding the right to vote and the right to stand for election as stipulated in BL 26, Hong Kong people should also have the right to be nominated in an election.

10. Ms CHAN Yuen-han considered that all parties should strive to forge a consensus on the electoral reform. She invited the deputations to give views on how to forge consensus to roll forward constitutional development in Hong Kong. Mr WONG Yung-tat of Civic Passion strongly queried the legal basis of the question "how could the "democratic procedures" reflect the requirement of "organizational nomination?" which was asked in the Consultation Document, as there was no mention of "organizational nomination" in BL. He expressed a strong view that it was unconstitutional for the HKSAR Government to do so.

11. Secretary for Constitutional and Mainland Affairs ("SCMA") explained that some footnotes in the Consultation Document were used to set out the viewpoints of some Mainland legal experts, as well as some recent views and suggestions raised by the public on various issues covered by the Consultation Document. He explained that these footnotes only sought to provide supplementary information for reference. He added that different views on "democratic procedures" referred to in BL 45 were also elaborated in footnote 11 of the Consultation Document.

12. On the concept of "organizational nomination", SCMA said that it was elaborated in footnotes 9 and 10 in the Consultation Document. He explained that BL 45 specified that NC was the body empowered to nominate CE candidates, as distinct from the current model of election by the Election Committee ("EC") whereby individual members of EC could jointly nominate candidates. The Administration considered it necessary to highlight this difference in the nomination approach between NC and EC in the Consultation Document. Relevant questions were also included in the Consultation Document to seek public views on the nomination procedures. SCMA also highlighted that BL 45 provided that "The ultimate aim is the selection of the Chief Executive by universal suffrage upon nomination by a broadly representative nominating committee in accordance with democratic procedures".

13. Ms Starry LEE expressed concurrence with the Administration that the methods for selecting CE in 2017 and for forming LegCo in 2016 should be discussed on the basis of the legal framework constituted by the relevant provisions in BL and the relevant Interpretation and Decisions of NPCSC. Ms LEE considered that the future proposals on the electoral reform to be put forward to LegCo should be able to secure the support of the Hong Kong people, LegCo Members and the Central Authorities. In response to the criticism of some deputations about the inclusion of the remarks by Mainland officials in the Consultation Document, Ms LEE considered that this arrangement was acceptable as it would facilitate the public to understand the viewpoints of the Mainland officials.

14. Ms Starry LEE sought deputations' views on how the future NC should be formed to enhance its representativeness. Mr WONG Wa-hong of Hong Kong CPPCC (Provincial) Members Association Ltd suggested that the membership size of NC should be 1 400, and the number of seats for each of the four sectors should be 350 and representatives of his organization should be included in NC as well. Mr CHAN Kwong-shik considered that NC should be formed in accordance with the principle of balanced participation and it should fulfil the requirement of being "broadly representative" as stipulated in BL in order to prevent Hong Kong from moving towards "welfarism".

15. Ms Emily LAU said that Hong Kong people also wanted to nominate candidates for the 2017 election or to have the right to elect members of NC. However, many Hong Kong people were concerned whether the composition of NC had to be similar to EC. She pointed out that EC, which was claimed to have enabled balanced participation of different strata and sectors, was however, widely criticized for being dominated by a small circle. She considered that the Central Authorities should trust Hong Kong people and respect their aspirations for genuine universal suffrage.

16. Mr PO Chun-chung of Defend Hong Kong Campaign opined that different electoral systems were adopted in overseas jurisdictions. He considered that the "one-person-one-vote" system might not genuinely reflect the contributions of different sectors to the society. He believed that the adoption of the principle of balanced participation could ensure that the interests of different sectors were represented in an election.

17. Mrs Regina IP said that in democratic countries such as the United States, the United Kingdom and France, the relevant nomination procedures were not by way of "civic nomination". Mr WONG Yun-tat of Neighbourhood and Worker's Service Centre responded that "civic nomination" would provide an avenue for the general public to nominate CE candidates and enable any aspirant to run for the CE election provided that he/she was able to obtain the required number of nominations of registered voters in Hong Kong. While he also supported the election of NC members through universal suffrage, he considered that nomination of CE candidates through "civic nomination" was a better way of enabling voters to have a genuine choice.

18. Ms Emily LAU sought the views of deputations on how to test whether a CE candidate "loves the country and Hong Kong" and the arrangements that should be adopted to cap the number of CE candidates. Mr WONG Pak-shing of Hong Kong Union of Chinese Workers in Western Style Employment said that the conduct of a CE candidate would be judged by the public. For example, persons who did not support BL and the Constitution of the People's Republic of China would not meet the requirement of "loving the country and Hong Kong". He agreed that candidates should be nominated by NC as stipulated in BL. Mr LEUNG Kai-lam of Hong Kong China Chamber of Commerce considered that the words and deeds of a CE candidate would be taken into account by NC in the nomination process. Ms KWOK Yee-wah expressed similar views and supported that only NC had the power to nominate CE candidates.

19. Ms Starry LEE said that under BL 45, the power to nominate CE candidates was vested in NC only. She considered that the substantive power of NC to nominate candidates would be undermined if candidates were nominated through "civic nomination". She sought the views of deputations on the ways of enhancing the democratic element of NC.

20. Mr AU Lap-hang of Eastern District Worker Union expressed disagreement with some deputations that the implementation of universal suffrage should be conducted strictly in accordance with BL. He considered that BL should be amended to reflect the actual situation of Hong Kong and respond to the aspirations of Hong Kong people for democracy. Mr LEUNG Kwok-hung agreed that BL should be amended to empower Hong Kong people to nominate CE candidates in order to achieve universal and equal suffrage. Mr Duncan TAI Hung-yu of the Nam An (Hong Kong) Association Ltd. considered that the community should discuss the electoral reform within the legal framework of BL in order to achieve universal suffrage.

21. SCMA stressed that relevant provisions in BL, together with relevant Interpretation and Decisions of NPCSC, constituted the legal framework for implementing universal suffrage in Hong Kong. He said that the view made by some deputations that the Central Authorities might consider reviewing the method for selecting CE in the future after two to three CE elections by universal suffrage had been held was noted.

22. Miss TSANG Ho-kwun of Wofoo Youth Network said that she was worried that it would be a waste of time and effort in conducting this public consultation exercise if the community insisted on "civic nomination". Mr LAM Sik-kin considered that the nomination procedures to be drawn up should be aimed to ensure that suitable persons with high caliber would be able to secure adequate nominations to run for the 2017 CE election.

23. Mr CHAN Chi-chuen invited the views of deputations on the suggestion that to avoid having a large number of candidates turning up for the 2017 CE election, a CE candidate had to pay a fine or had the election deposit forfeited if he/she failed to obtain a certain percentage of the valid votes in the election. Mr Avery NG Man-yuen of League of Social Democrats considered that the above suggestion would not help ensure that only candidates who were competent could run for the election. He suggested that there should be two rounds of voting in the 2017 CE election. The two candidates obtaining the highest number of votes could enter into the second round of voting. A candidate would be elected as CE only if he/she had obtained more than half of the valid votes. SCMA advised that in the light of overseas experience, the requirement of a high election deposit to be paid by candidates of an election might constitute an unreasonable constraint to their right to stand for election.

24. Mr Avery NG Man-yuen asked whether the Administration would make reference to the results of the survey conducted by the University of Hong Kong in December 2013, according to which about 66% of respondents supported "civic nomination". He also asked whether the new form of "organizational nomination" would constitute a breach of Article 25 of ICCPR. SCMA said that the Administration would make reference to the findings of surveys conducted by academic institutions in formulating policies. He reiterated that CE should be elected by universal suffrage upon nomination by a broadly representative NC as stipulated in BL 45. The Administration welcomed any views and suggestions on how NC should be formed to meet the requirement of "broadly representative".

25. Mr Raphael WONG Ho-ming of Popular Nominations Struggle Committee asked whether any committees similar to NC had been set up in other jurisdictions to nominate candidates and whether the adoption of "civic nomination" would contravene BL. SCMA said that different nomination systems were adopted in overseas jurisdictions in accordance with the actual situation of the places concerned. He explained that it would be inappropriate for him to comment on any specific proposal at the present stage in order to allow room for discussion in the community. He added that the aim of this first round of public consultation was to gather views from different sectors of the community.

Method for forming LegCo in 2016

26. Mr LEE Cheuk-yan sought the views of deputations on the way forward of the functional constituencies ("FC") system and on the suggestion of abolishing FCs seats. Mr KWOK Tak-leung responded that the Property Agencies Association considered that the constitutional reform should be taken forward in accordance with the principle of gradual and orderly progress, and FC seats of LegCo should be retained at this stage to balance the interests of different sectors of the community. Mr Barry WONG expressed dissatisfaction that under the existing FC system, many frontline staff members of the social welfare field (e.g. health workers and welfare workers) were not eligible to register as voters in the sector. He considered that the relevant arrangement should be reviewed to enlarge the electorate base of the social welfare sector.

27. Pointing out that even deputations representing some FCs requested that the electorate base of their sectors be enlarged, Mr LEUNG Kwok-hung considered that to resolve the conflicts in the society, Hong Kong people should be allowed to nominate CE candidates.

28. SCMA said that the Administration noted the suggestions of some deputations that the electorate base of certain FCs (e.g. Social Welfare FC and the Transport FC) should be enlarged and some new subsectors should be added to the future NC (e.g. women and youth) to enhance its representativeness. He considered that the criteria of voter registration in the relevant sectors should be kept transparent to ensure that elections were conducted in an open and fair manner, and welcomed further proposals in this regard.

29. SCMA advised that as clearly set out in the NPCSC Decision in 2007, the election of all Members of LegCo by universal suffrage might be implemented only after CE was selected by universal suffrage. Given that the selection of CE by universal suffrage could be implemented in 2017 as provided for in the Decision in 2007, election of all Members by universal suffrage could only be implemented in 2020 at the earliest.

Other issues

30. Ms CHAN Yuen-han considered that more opportunities should be provided to young people to express their views on electoral reform. She invited views from deputations on whether the current Administration's publicity activities on electoral reform targeted at young people were sufficient and effective. Mr HUI Hoi-tik considered that the Administration should reach out to young people through more innovative channels to encourage them to express their views on the electoral reform. Mr Matthew SIN considered that the Government could not attract young people to discuss electoral reform simply by uploading the relevant official documents onto the Government website. He suggested that the Government should reach out to young people more proactively to engage them in the discussion.

31. Dr Priscilla LEUNG considered that the Administration should enhance publicity of BL, particularly BL 26, 45 and 68, and make known its stance on proposals which might not be consistent with BL.

32. SCMA agreed to the views that innovative publicity initiatives should be adopted in promoting Government policies, including this consultation exercise on the electoral reform. He said that the Administration would consider stepping up its effort to reach out to the young people through new media platforms to gauge their views on electoral reform. He welcomed suggestions from the public in this regard.

33. Regarding some deputations' suggestion of implementing compulsory voting, SCMA said the Administration noted that some jurisdictions had adopted compulsory voting and might conduct research study in this area. He noted that the Panel had also considered the implementation of automatic voter registration to improve the voter turnout rate and the low registration rate of young people. The Administration would consider such views by making reference to the relevant experience of other jurisdictions. SCMA invited deputations which had suggestions on the polling arrangements of the future CE election by universal suffrage to put forward their suggestions in writing to the Administration for further consideration.

134.*	Mr Eric YEUNG	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The universal suffrage for the CE election in 2017 should be implemented in accordance with BL and the 2007 NPCSC Decision. Any proposals that undermine the substantive power of NC to nominate candidates are objected. The nominated CE candidates should "love the country and Hong Kong". • To enhance the representativeness of the future NC, consideration should be given to i) increasing the number of members of NC from 1 200 to 1 800; and ii) adding new subsectors (e.g. small and medium size enterprises, women and youth) to the relevant sectors of NC.
135.*	Ms Jaclyn NGAN	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The universal suffrage for the CE election in 2017 should be implemented in accordance with the principle of gradual and orderly progress and having regard to the actual situation of Hong Kong. • CE should "love the country and Hong Kong" and shall be accountable to the Central Authorities and the Hong Kong people. The number of CE candidates is suggested to be three to four to allow competition in the CE election.
136.*	Mr Stanley CHOI	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The power of nominating CE candidates should be vested in the future NC. To allow competition, NC should nominate at least three candidates to run in the CE election. • The CPG should not decline to appoint the elected candidate to uphold the principle of "Hong Kong people ruling Hong Kong". The methods for selecting CE should be reviewed after two to three CE elections by universal suffrage have been held.
137.*	Wanchai Community Association	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The universal suffrage for the CE election in 2017 should be implemented in accordance with BL and the 2007 NPCSC Decision.
138.*	Mr Barry WONG	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The electorate base of the social welfare subsector of the future NC in the 2017 CE selection and the social welfare FC in the 2016 LegCo election should be enlarged as far as possible to cover more working personnel in the field (e.g. local domestic helpers, health workers and welfare workers).

143.*	Mr Lemon FOK	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● The members of the future NC should be selected randomly from the general public. To become a CE candidate, one has to obtain 100 nominations in NC. ● All FCs seats of LegCo should be abolished in one go. The ultimate goal is to return all LegCo members through the "one-person-one-vote" method.
144.*	Livelihood Concern Group	Presentation of views on the definition of "love the country and Hong Kong", the nomination procedures of CE candidates, and the composition of the four sectors of NC.
145.*	Labour Party	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● There should not be any "screening" of CE candidates for the 2017 CE election. Candidates should be nominated through "civic nomination" or "party nomination" to genuinely reflect the views of the general public. ● All FCs seats of LegCo should be abolished as soon as possible.
146.*	Mr Louis CHENG	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● CE candidates must be nominated through "civic nomination" to reflect the views of the general public and to avoid any screening of candidates by the Central Authorities.

151.*	League of Social Democrats	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● The "three-track" nomination proposal which comprises the element of "civic nomination" is supported. Under the "civic nomination" system, one can become a CE candidate if he/she can obtain nominations of 1% of all registered voters in Hong Kong. ● All FCs seats of LegCo should be abolished immediately.
152.*	Hong Kong Youth Development Council	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● The membership of NC should be enlarged to enhance participation of different political parties. ● The "three-track" nomination proposal is acceptable but candidates nominated through "civic nomination" or "party nomination" should be further considered and assessed by NC.
153.*	Wofoo Infinity Network	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● CE candidates should be nominated by NC under the legal framework of BL. Consideration can be given to increasing the members of NC to include more people from different backgrounds and political parties to enhance its representatives. ● It is a legitimate requirement that CE has to "love the country and Hong Kong".
154.*	Wofoo Youth Network	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● The proposals of civic nomination and nomination by political parties are objected as they bypass the nomination procedures of NC. ● The membership and the electorate base of NC should be enlarged and one-fourth of its members should be elected through "one-person-one-vote" by voters.
155.*	Youth Ambassador Union of the Basic Law	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Universal suffrage for the CE election in 2017 should be implemented in accordance with BL, and CE candidates should be nominated by NC. ● "Civic nomination" which contravenes the requirement of BL is objected.
156.*	Popular Nominations Struggle Committee	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● CE candidates should be nominated through "civic nomination", which has been put into practice in various geographical constituency direct elections.
157.*	Ms Cherry LEE Ka-shun	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● The nomination of CE candidates through "civic nomination" does not contravene BL and is strongly supported. Any screening of candidates by NC is objected.
