Measures to prevent attacks on local web sites by hackers

(3) Dr Hon Elizabeth QUAT (Oral reply)

It has been reported that on the first day of this month, an international hackers' group declared cyber war codenamed "Operation Hong Kong" and threatened to hack, in a joint effort with hackers around the world, into the web sites of the Hong Kong Government and make public the Government's confidential information and personal data of officials. The group also announced a few tens of web sites as the targets of their attacks, which included those of the Hong Kong Police Force, Department of Justice, Customs and Excise Department, certain local media organizations and the Hong Kong Exchanges and Clearing Limited. Subsequently, there were reports about local web sites being attacked by hackers leading to temporary suspension of their network operation. In this connection, will the Government inform this Council:

- (1) whether it has examined the modus operandi used by the aforesaid hackers' group for launching cyber attacks and the economic losses caused by such attacks; if it has, of the details; if not, the reasons for that;
- (2) whether the authorities have comprehensively reviewed and enhanced the cyber security measures of various government departments since the declaration of cyber war by the hackers' group; whether they will take measures to ensure that public and private organizations, including individuals, will be protected from attacks by local or overseas hackers; if they will, of the details, if not, the reasons for that; and
- (3) whether it has investigated if the hackers' group has any direct or indirect connections with overseas governments or organizations; if it has conducted such an investigation, of the outcome?

Provision of charging services for mobile telephones and other small electrical appliances

(22) Hon YIU Si-wing (Written Reply)

It is learnt that the majority of the public places, tourist attractions and hotspots in Hong Kong do not provide visitors with charging services for mobile telephones and other small electrical appliances (“charging services”), and in this respect, Hong Kong has lagged behind Taiwan, Japan as well as European and American countries. In this connection, will the Government inform this Council:

- (1) whether it has compiled statistics on the provision of charging services at the museums, theatres and parks managed by government departments, the visitor centres operated by the Hong Kong Tourism Board and the public places managed by private organizations; if it has, of the details (set out in a table); if not, the reasons for that;
- (2) regarding the charging services currently provided at the places mentioned in (1), how the authorities will step up publicity and provide more explanatory instructions so that tourists and members of the public can get to know how to use such services; and
- (3) whether it has any plan to allocate resources to provide additional charging services at tourist attractions, shopping arcades and other public places for the convenience of tourists and members of the public; if it does, of the details; if not, the reasons for that?
