Please respond to Wendy Chan

To whom it might concern,

That's so ironic that today we are still discussing how to ban the ivory trade here, in Hong Kong, such a "well-developed" city.

Please! Hong Kong Government have to take the responsibility to help on protecting the wildlife!

First, I absolutely agree and support HK government ban the ivory, that's not only ethical reason, it's also about the reputation of HK! It's controversial that a city like Hong Kong not say no to ivory trade.

So, let's focus about the action of ivory ban. HK government should increase in penalties for wildlife crime, otherwise, the ivory trader totally not respect and doesn't care even commit the law!

HK government should make a clear and determine stand on protecting wildlife and intolerance to all the wildlife crime. I mean government should really have a second thought on it, this is so shame that our city still acquiescent such trading activities, we have to take it serious as a drug trade!

In order to make a strong stand, that's why HK government shouldn't paying compensation to the HK ivory trader for their ivory stocks!

I wish to see our city can move forward and will have a positive discussion and action on 6th Jun Legislative Council meeting.

Yours Sincerely,

Wendy Chan
