Dear Sir,

It is with great sadness that now, world wide and on a daily basis we hear and read about such atrocities involving the unnecessary poaching and ongoing mutilation and massacre of our beautiful wildlife.

My name is Helen Jones and I live in UK, and have three grandchildren. The eldest two are just 7yrs of age. They now understand the atrocities committed on elephants ,rhino and other wildlife that provides a trade in ivory and bones. They are taught these things at school, and on television and they are forming their opinions. If we wish for our children to work together in the future, they must also have respect for each other.

Children are the most precious lives we have, they are our future please let us lead them by example and leave a lasting legacy of change for them that is good ,something they will thank us for, not hate us for.

I support the Hong Kong Ivory Ban , and subsequently urge the Hong Kong Legislative Council to refrain from supporting any action that compensates ivory traders .

This is a most horrific trade and countries indirectly continue to encourage criminal activities amongst their own, and resulting in the needless, barbaric decimation of countless wild animals that continues to supply the trade. By these continuous acts we threaten our own existence. The world is watching and judging.

The 21st century is a century for change for the good of mankind and to leave archaic practices behind us.

Yours Faithfully

Helen Jones
