Dear LegCo,

I am writing to you to support the Hong Kong's government's Ivory ban. Here are some reasons why.

Firstly, they are killing animals that will become endangered, and they are precious animals. They might not even exist if we keep on killing them at this rate. I know Ivory can be pretty, but don't you think it's 'bad' killing all those animals. If we ban it, we can save a lot of animals.

Secondly, if elephants are all dead, then the animals that eat elephants might starve to death, then it keeps on going and going. It destroys the food chain and everything will change because of the killing of elephants!!! This is important because a lot of animals will die and we might not have enough food.

In my perspective, I think that it would be sad for the people if we kill all the elephants, then these people in the future will not be able to see elephants.

Furthermore, in some religions, their gods might be elephants. Such as Thailand and more. If you're Buddhist or Hindu, then it would be painful for you. Others might not really care but you should respect their religion.

Sincerely,

Natalia
