

Hong kong Ivory Ban
Samarth Khanna to: panel_ea

04/06/2017 13:48

To: The legislative counsel of the Hong Kong S.A.R

I feel that elephants are among the most important animals on the planet. The whole ecosystem depends on them. Their lifestyle in wild is such that it benefits the trees and local vegetation and the animals while indirectly they fuel up the economy of nations as many depend on natural resources. There is much we still need to learn from elephants and undoubtedly these studies can benefit mankind advance medical or scientific efforts. Also, these gentle giants are emotionally sensitive beings and it would be a great loss to us and the future of our planet if they were to become extinct.

Samarth Khanna
Global March for Elephants and Rhinos
India