Panel on Manpower

Background brief prepared by the Legislative Council Secretariat for the meeting on 15 November 2016

Employment services of the Labour Department

Purpose

This paper gives an account of the past discussions by the Panel on Manpower on the employment services provided by the Labour Department ("LD") since the Fourth Legislative Council ("LegCo").

Background

2. According to the Administration, LD provides free recruitment assistance to employers and employment services to job seekers through a network of 13 job centres throughout the territory, three recruitment centres for the catering, retail and construction industries, the Job Vacancy Processing Centre and the Telephone Employment Service Centre. Apart from paying visits to job centres, job seekers may obtain the latest vacancy information through the Interactive Employment Service website as well as the various vacancy search terminals located throughout the territory.

3. To cater for the needs of different job seekers, LD administers various specialized employment programmes, including the Youth Employment and Training Programme ("YETP") (formerly known as the Youth Pre-employment Training Programme and the Youth Work Experience and Training Scheme), the Employment Programme for the Middle-aged ("EPM"), the Work Trial Scheme and the Work Orientation and Placement Scheme. Under these programmes, job seekers are provided with tailor-made employment support services such as the provision of work trials in actual working environment and on-the-job training, etc. Both large-scale and district-based job fairs are organized to facilitate job seekers to apply for jobs and attend interviews with employers on the spot.

Deliberations of the Panel

Employment support for mature persons

4. According to the Administration, EPM aimed at encouraging employers to engage unemployed job seekers aged 40 or above with employment difficulties in full-time jobs through the provision of on-the-job training allowance of up to $3,000 per month for employers of mature job seekers for a period of three to six months. To encourage employers to offer more openings to these job seekers, as announced in the 2015 Policy Address, the Administration would extend EPM to cover part-time jobs in the second half of 2015 to encourage employers to provide more suitable part-time employment opportunities to persons aged 40 or above, including female homemakers and early retirees. The training allowance would be set at 25% of the employee's monthly salary, up to $3,000, for a period of three to six months.

5. Some members considered that the Administration should collaborate with employers of the emerging industries in providing appropriate training and retraining to the middle-aged and the retirees so as to help them enter or re-join the labour market. The Administration advised that the Employees Retraining Board ("ERB") had widely consulted employer associations and the relevant Industry Consultative Network as well as other parties concerned in the development of the training and retraining courses for the service targets, including the middle-aged, and the courses were offered in response to the needs of the market.

6. Some members expressed the view that the support measures taken by the Administration to help promote employment of mature persons should focus on the retirees. Specifically, the Administration should collect relevant information and conduct data analysis in respect of the number of mature persons with intention to work if being offered suitable employment as well as their difficulties encountered so as to draw up concrete measures to help them overcome the barriers to work.

7. According to the Administration, some of the mature persons were reluctant to re-join the labour market simply because of long working hours and some of them would prefer part-time jobs. On the Administration's efforts in encouraging employers to provide more part-time posts to mature job seekers, LD had been encouraging employers to provide the mature employees with a family-friendly working environment with flexible and various work arrangements and support. It also regularly organized employment briefings for mature persons and experience sharing sessions for employers on the benefits of employing mature persons.

Employment assistance to young people

8. Members expressed concern that the unemployment rate of young people was relatively higher than the overall employment rate in Hong Kong. Concern was raised about the employment support and training services to young people. The Administration advised that YETP launched by LD provided one-stop pre-employment and on-the-job training with a monthly salary of some $8,000 for young school leavers aged 15 to 24 with educational attainment at sub-degree or below. It was expected that the trainees could secure employment with better remuneration in the labour market upon completion of the training and acquiring relevant working experience.

9. Some members considered that the Administration should place more emphasis on students rather than school leavers and young job seekers in promoting youth employment, in order to facilitate students to better understand the labour market and their own career aspirations at an early stage. The Administration acknowledged that it was crucial to help young people start life planning at an early stage and understand the manpower requirements, career prospects and progression pathways in different trades and industries. To this end, LD had operated two Youth Employment Resource Centres, i.e. Youth Employment Start ("YES") at Mongkok and Kwai Fong, which offered personalized career advisory services, including career planning to young people aged between 15 and 29. In addition, LD had promoted the services of YES in schools.

10. Noting that two pilot projects, namely the "Hotel Operation Trainee Training Project" and "Reading Culture", were launched by LD in 2015, some members expressed concern about the the employment prospect of the trainees upon completion of the training. According to the Administration, there were 30 and 60 on-the-job training opportunities under the "Hotel Operation Trainee Training Project" and "Reading Culture" respectively, both of which lasted for six months. Similar to other employment projects, trainees with satisfactory performance would have good prospect of finding jobs with the participating employers and other employers of the industries.

Women employment

11. Members had all along called for the provision of adequate child care services so as to release the female homemakers to join the labour force. In addition, more resources should be provided by ERB to equip the female homemakers for entering the labour market. The Administration advised that ERB had since 2009 rebranded the "Integrated Scheme for Local Domestic Helpers" as the "Smart Living Scheme", which was a one-stop job matching and referral platform for household services, elderly care and support to increase the employment opportunities for graduates of relevant ERB training courses.

12. The Administration further advised that to remove the barriers for women to stay in employment and to further respond to the community demand for child care services, it had been launching a series of measures to strengthen the existing child care services. These included the provision of, by phases, about 5 000 additional places of Extended Hours Service at aided child care centres and kindergarten-cum-child care centres from 2015-2016 onwards and the enhancement of the after-school care services. Moreover, the Administration would commission a consultancy study to advise on strategies for the long-term development of child care services with a view to providing services that would meet the needs of the families in Hong Kong.

Employment support for persons with disabilities

13. Noting that a considerable number of persons with disabilities remained unemployed after having repeatedly sought employment, some members asked whether the Government, as the largest employer in Hong Kong, would consider giving priority in engaging job seekers with disabilities who had registered at LD to fill vacancies in the civil service. Concern was raised about the Administration's efforts in promoting the employment of persons with disabilities and whether it would consider requiring large enterprises to employ a specified percentage or a specific number of employees with disabilities.

14. The Administration advised that the Administration had all along been committed to promoting the employment of persons with disabilities through various publicity channels. The Administration had also been approaching employers in various trades and industries and working with the Human Resources Managers Clubs to enhance the employment prospect of job seekers with disabilities and would continue to work in such direction. In respect of helping job seekers with disabilities registered with LD to apply for government posts, LD had been keeping watch for recruitment notices posted at the website of the Civil Service Bureau and would disseminate such information to both able-bodied job seekers and those with disabilities.

Employment assistance to ethnic minorities

15. Members expressed concern about the unemployment rate of the ethnic minorities ("EMs") job seekers and sought information on the specific measures in place to address the employment difficulties of EM job seekers, such as language barrier and cultural difference. Members were of the view that LD's staff should enhance their understanding and sensitivity of the specific needs of EM job seekers and called on the Administration to provide dedicated employment support for EM job seekers.

16. According to the Administration, LD's job centres maintained close contact with non-governmental organizations providing services for EMs so as to attain a better understanding of their employment needs and provide appropriate employment support services. To help EMs better understand the latest labour market situation and improve job search skills, the Interactive Employment Service website and vacancy search terminals of LD were equipped with both Chinese and English interfaces to facilitate access to job vacancy information by EMs. In addition, leaflets on LD's employment services for EMs were printed in various ethnic languages and interpretation service for EM job seekers at LD's job centres would be arranged as necessary.

17. Some members were of the view that the Administration should consider recruiting EMs as placement officers at LD's job centres to enhance communication with EM job seekers. Members were advised that LD launched a pilot project "Employment Services Ambassador Programme for Ethnic Minorites" in September 2014 to directly employ over 10 EM trainees of YETP as Employment Services Ambassadors in the job centres and job fairs of The project sought to help job centres proactively reach LD for six months. out to EM job seekers and enhance the provision of employment services to It also helped the EM trainees acquire work experience and skills and them. map out their career plans. Upon completion of the project in March 2015, LD would conduct a review on the effectiveness of the pilot project and consider the way forward of the programme.

18. At its meeting on 15 March 2016, the Panel passed a motion requesting the Government to establish an Ethnic Minorities Employment Division in one of LD's job centres, at which fluent English-speaking EM staff were engaged to provide employment support services for non-Chinese-speaking job seekers.

Industry-based employment support

19. Noting that the Construction Industry Recruitment Centre ("CIRC") opened in January 2016, members sought information on the distinct function of CIRC as compared with other LD job centres. Some members were of the view that job matching service should be provided at CIRC for job seekers to fill such vacancies as appropriate.

20. The Administration advised that for some traditional construction jobs, job search or recruitment relied on personal connections. This might limit the choices of job seekers and employers. CIRC provided employers and job seekers of the construction industry a free and user-friendly employment service platform. Employers, contractors and sub-contractors could organize job fairs and conduct on-the-spot interviews with job seekers. LD had been appealing to the trade associations, contractors and sub-contractors to actively place job vacancies and organize job fairs in CIRC and urging trade unions and the Construction Industry Council to encourage workers and trainees to find jobs through CIRC. It was hoped that CIRC could bring about a cultural change by offering an additional recruitment channel for the construction industry.
