

To: panel_dev@legco.gov.hk

From: Ben Jones [REDACTED]

Date: 02/04/2019 03:25PM

Subject: Land reclamation plans

Dear Hong Kong Government. You should cancel your reclamation plans because of multiple reasons. The environmental impacts of reclaiming the land are massive. Pollution from the construction would harm the wildlife around the islands. The mud underneath the ocean contains parts that are dangerous for wildlife. If the mud is moved because of the erosion caused by the construction, the parts in the mud would harm the marine wildlife. The reclamation of the land would take a long time and money. You should use the money on better things like helping the homeless or helping with other problems such as climate change. Citizens can take ferries to the islands so connecting them is unnecessary. If you are convinced that people need to get to the islands then you could create government ferries that would be more organised than private ferries. The earth is in need of help regarding climate change and the money going to the islands could help with climate change.